The Polytechnic.

London, Sept. 26
The King and Queen sent a message conveying their "heartiest congratulations on the splendid record of an institution which has spread its educational benefits far and wide and, as patrons, their best wishes for the future welfare and prosperity of the Polytechnic" at the Jubilee Festival of the Polytechnic held on Sept. 24. Sir Kynaston Studd said that when Quintin Hogg started the Polytechnic he was criticised by many people who prophesied failure. In 1882 the number of members and students was 3,500, and last year the number was over 20,000.

Air-mail Plans.

The British Air Mail Service to Karachi is proposed to be extended to Singapore, if the Australian Government establishes an air-line link between Singapore and Australia. It is estimated that the time for the whole journey to Port Darwin would be not more than 10 days. We will be happier when this is a "fait accompli" and not merely a pious hope.

A new schedule is arranged by the K.L.M., the Royal Dutch Air Lines Coy., which will, as from October 1st, reduce the time of the weekly service Amsterdam to Batavia—from nineteen days to 9 days, with the aid of a new type of aircraft. This service from Amsterdam to Batavia (9,000 miles) will take only 2 days longer than that taken by Imperial Airways to cover the 4,000 miles from London to Karachi. It takes only 4 hours from London to Amsterdam by the regular daily air mail.

The Dutch line to the East is by way of Nuremberg, Budapest, Sofia, Aleppo, Baghdad, Jodhpur and Allahabad. It appears to us that the best chance Hong Kong has of obtaining a rapid mail service from Great Britain lies in the competition between the French and Dutch Lines, both of which seem to be alive to the necessity of this.

Nameless Streets.

One criticism of London voiced frequently by visitors, and given point to by the complaints of the Mayor of Chicago when he visited here recently, is that it has very few name-plates on its streets, and that even where they have been put up they can hardly be seen. This makes it very difficult for strangers to find way without endless enquiries, although steps are now being taken in many of the boroughs to set the matter right. The plan being adopted is very welcome as not only are the new plates made with large bold lettering but they are being fixed on the walls at a low level where they will be visible not only to pedestrians but also to motorists. Unfortunately, the centre of London, where name-plates are most required, is still more or less a desert.

A Bureau for Sportsmen.

Under the presidency of the Duke of Beaufort a new development in the interests of field sports and angling has just been inaugurated by the British Field Sports Society, St. Stephen's House, Victoria Embankment, S.W. 1. Its main object is to make available, on the sportiest notice, to sportsmen, any place in every county in the United Kingdom in which they can have a few days' hunting, shooting or fishing. A list of hotels, stabling, liverymen, persons willing to hire out reliable hunters, house agents, and other useful details will be supplied. The scheme is so far advanced that its facilities will be available for sportsmen this winter.

Great Show of Antiques.

An exhibition of antiques, mainly British, will be opened by Lord Lea of Foreham on Oct. 13th at Messrs. Christie's Great Rooms St. James', S.W. Of international importance, it should prove to be the finest of its kind ever held in London. All the objects exhibited will be carefully selected by a Committee of experts and an important departure in exhibitions of this kind—will be for sale. There will be furniture, tapestries, snuff-boxes, china, plate, needlework, historical dresses, miniatures, coins and medals, paintings, jewels, early sundials, arms and armour, enamel-work, faience ware, early musical instruments, sculpture and carving, early watches and Chinese porcelain.

Some of the objects of first-rate historical interest will include a superb embroidered throne made for Queen Elizabeth when she visited Sir Roger Wodehouse in Norfolk in 1578. Also one of her gowns—a magnificent example of Elizabethan needlework so carefully executed that both the inside and outside of the garment present the same appearance.

The actual Prayer Book and Testament of Archbishop Laud, the needlework cover of which, for many years, has been known to collectors as the finest in existence. There will be a porringer embellished with the arms of Samuel Pepys, and a lacquer cabinet carved by Grinling Gibbons, together with a set of three exquisitely painted tables in West Indian satinwood, which were presented by Nelson to Lady Hamilton.

RACE THRILLS ON HOVE SEA FRONT

WOMEN FAINT AT AN ACCIDENT

FAMOUS DRIVERS COMPETE

Brighton.—Motor-cars and motor-cycles raced wide open at the Brighton and Hove Motor Club meeting on the front here on Sept. 19.

The Corporation had closed the front specially for the racing, which lasted four and a half hours.

Many famous drivers entered, but the thrill of the meeting was the race between Sir Malcolm Campbell, in his Sunbeam, and Mr. John Cobb, in his Delage—two of the most famous racing cars in the world.

In first gear both cars were level, and in second Cobb drew twenty-five yards ahead. Amid breathless excitement Sir Malcolm picked up in third, and crossed the line at 73.27 m.p.h., winning by thirty yards—a triumph for the British car, and a record for the course.

Spectator Hurt.

An immediate attack was made on the record by R. W. Storey, of Mansfield, on a motor-cycle. He knocked 1.25sec. off Sir Malcolm's time.

The meeting was marred by an accident towards its close, when the fly-wheel of one of the competing cars burst and bounded among the crowd on the beach.

It struck Douglas Limbrey, aged twenty-one, of Leaside-avenue, Muswell Hill, inflicting a laceration on the forehead.

Many women fainted, and had to receive attention from the St. John ambulance men.

small sports car combining efficiency with refinement. Mere performance figures do not give a real indication of the quality of Hornet special as apart from high-speed and remarkable acceleration from a 1,271 c.c. engine. The car does its work with the utmost smoothness and with complete mechanical silence. The controls also are notably light, and the car rides like one very much larger and heavier.

LONDON'S GREAT PETROL RUSH

BUYING BEFORE 3D. RISE AFTER MIDNIGHT

London, September 14.—An amazing rush to buy petrol began last night, shortly after an official announcement had been issued that the price of petrol would be increased 3d. a gallon as from midnight.

Here was news with money in it. It was like a gold rush.

Home-going motorists, who heard the news in the early evening, queued up at filling stations and bought all their tanks would hold, and when the theatres emptied the same process began all over again.

Garages in the West-end became jammed with cars. Outside one was a line which stretched to the end of the street. Nothing like it had been seen before.

And among those waiting for "a fill-up at the old price" were scores of motorists who, finding their own local garages closed, had driven into London to save money. Some even took away extra supplies in cans.

As a general rule no news of any change is allowed to leak out before the petrol dealers open in the morning. But for some unexplained reason the change in price was announced in the late evening papers.

Did Not Want to Sell.

As midnight approached the garages in West London were besieged by scores of motorists anxious to lay in their supplies of petrol before the increased price came into force.

It was probably the first time in the history of the retail business that dealers did not want to sell. If they could hold their stocks until midnight every gallon in their tanks meant an extra 3d. profit.

Two petrol stations at least on the Portsmouth-road closed down before their usual time. The proprietors of one of these said to a Daily Express representative:—

"The position is absurd. I tried to get in a fresh lot of petrol this afternoon without knowing that an increase in price was coming. I was informed that the load could not be delivered. Then the companies go and tell people to go and buy petrol before midnight."

"People have been coming here in a stream filling their tanks to the brim. At least three new customers arrived shortly after the announcement and each asked for ten gallons of petrol. If the announcement had been made in the morning trade would have been normal, and I should have benefited by the increase."

Brought a Pail.

Another owner said: "I had a man in here to-night with seven petrol tins which he asked me to fill. He was not a regular customer, and I told him my petrol pumps were dry. Another man brought a pail. I told him his 3d. profit would evaporate by the morning."

The owner of a large petrol station in Old Kent-road said: "We sold five times as much petrol between six and ten o'clock to-night than we did throughout the whole of yesterday. Many of our customers have asked me to reserve for them as much as fifteen to twenty gallons."

It is estimated that the motorists of Great Britain and Northern Ireland will have to pay £1,000,000 a month more for their petrol. Omnibus companies, it is expected, may consider an immediate revision of their fares. The increase will mean another 21,000 a day in the petrol bill of the London General Omnibus Company.

The new price of first-grade petrol distributed by the combine companies to-day is 1s. 7 1/2d.

NEAR AND FAR

How Many Cars in France?

The Commercial Counsellor to H.M. Embassy at Paris reports that according to the Journal Officiel the number of passenger cars in use in France is 1,251,538, of which 1,184,439 was less than nine years old. In 1930-1931 the total was 1,100,000, and in 1929, 930,180. The number of vehicles for the transport of goods in 1931-1932 was 437,060, of which 317,238 were less than nine years old. In 1930-1931 and 1929 the totals were 410,616 and 305,021, respectively.

693 Miles in 15 1/2 Hours.

By covering the distance of 693 miles between Brisbane and Sydney in 15 hours 33 mins., a 9 h.p. Singer, driven by Mr. Arthur Beasley, has created a new record and beaten the previous holder by about 8 1/2 hours. The French company, whose record has been so convincingly eclipsed, were confident that their performance could not be lowered by a light car.

The Singer averaged about 42 m.p.h. for the trip over roads which in places were very hilly, and it is noteworthy that the time taken for the trip is only 45 minutes more than the heavy car record, which is held by an American firm.

The Road Hog's Toll.

Two hundred children were killed in the streets in traffic accidents during the holiday months of July and August. It is estimated that three out of every four of these accidents could have been averted if the provisions of the Highway Code had been properly carried out.

"It should be the duty of the State to give instruction in road sense to children in the schools," says a London paper. The community long ago abolished the money tolls of the roads. They ought not to tolerate the dreadful new toll of the roads in children's lives.

Unappreciated Humour.

A Home paper remarks: Six Army officers who held up motorists for a joke at a lonely cross-roads in Wiltshire were fined £2 each and ordered to pay £8 costs at Salisbury last month.

This is a time when the scare of the motor bandit is wide-spread. It was chosen by these young men to play a lunatic trick of terrifying road-users. They made fools of themselves very cheaply. It cost them a little over £3 a head. An acid comment of a Socialistic nature follows.

Cylinder Wear.

"Cylinder Bore Wear" is the title of an interesting little book published in the interests of the automobile industry jointly by The Birmingham Aluminium Casting Co. and The Midland Motor Cylinder Co. The nom de plume "Birmid" covers the identity of one well known in the industry, and who is eminently qualified to write on the subject. He makes one statement which causes one to think: "According to a competent observer a clear eight minutes passed after starting up an engine, having forced lubrication, before the oil began to reach the cylinder walls."

From this it is obvious that doctors and others who make journeys in a restricted area require the splash lubrication system.

Albions in Australia.

Despite the unfavourable business conditions, it is good news to hear that at least one British firm is reaping the benefit of its work in Australia. Albion Motors, Ltd., the well-known Scottish manufacturers of commercial motors and buses, report that the total of last year's orders has already been exceeded in 1932, and that hardly a week now passes without business being reported by their associated company—Albion Motors (A/Asia), Ltd., who have depots in both Melbourne and Sydney.

Messrs. Maughan-Thiem, Ltd., of Adelaide and British Australian Motors, Ltd., of Brisbane, are concessionaires for Albions, while the sale of these popular trucks in Western Australia has recently been entrusted to Messrs. F. Winterbottom & Co., Ltd.

The Albion 30/35 cwt. model has become very popular with market gardeners in Australia, the most recent business in this connection being a machine of this type sold to the Committee of Direction of Fruit Marketing.

Minx Makes Friends.

Two of the most interesting names which figure on the list of recent purchasers of the Hillman Minx are Messrs. W. O. and H. M. Bentley, who, as can readily be imagined, are keen judges of a car.

Another new owner of note is Sir Edward Elgar, Bart., O.M., K.C.V.O., who has just taken delivery of a Minx Saloon de Luxe, while other recent distinguished purchasers include the Countess Jellicoe, of Ventnor, I.O.W., the Rt. Hon. Lord Congleton, of Lyndhurst, the Countess of Eglinton and Wintom, of Windsor, and Lord de Ramsey, of Dublin, whose choice has fallen on a Minx Sports Tourer.

An Oil Tanker for South Africa.

It is claimed that a new Albion 1,500 gallon tank wagon, which is being supplied to the Vacuum Oil Co. by Messrs. Reynolds, Sons & Partners, Ltd., the Albion concessionaires in Johannesburg, will be the largest motor tanker in the Union of South Africa.

The 6-ton Albion chassis forms the basis of this interesting machine which is mounted on 38 in. x 9 in. pneumatics, twin on the rear wheels. It is understood that it will operate in the Transvaal often at altitudes of 3,000 feet above sea level.

Mersey Tunnel Motor Traffic.

Of the 1,500,000 vehicles expected to use the Mersey Tunnel each year—the tunnel will not be ready for opening until about June next year—it is estimated that 800,000 private motor cars will pay tolls at the rate of 1s. 6d. each, bringing in a revenue of £240,000. According to a census which has recently been made, the expected traffic and toll revenue, together with that from private cars, is as follows: 100,000 motor cycles and other light vehicles at 6d. each, £25,000; 540,000 motor vans, lorries, and other heavy vehicles at 3s., £81,000; 100,000 motor coaches and motor buses at 2s. 6d., £12,500; and 30,000 taxis, oil tanks, and so on, at 2s. £3,000.

Parliamentary powers are to be sought by the Mersey Tunnel Joint Committee to enable them to extend the toll-paying period beyond the twenty-five years already authorised as a maximum, this step being necessary since the estimates of capital expenditure have been heavily exceeded.

PRIMITIVE RAILWAY IN ENGLAND

TWO OLD FORDS—BACK-TO-BACK.

Connecting a main line with a small seaside village on the south coast is a pleasantly primitive railway system. Although the owner's have assumed the dignified title of railway company, the ordinance survey has relegated the system to that of tramway. Its former and rather quaint title, "The Hundred of Manhood and Selsey Tramway" supports the latter.

The type of "train" varies. In one case it consists of two old Fords (complete with bumpers) back to back. The bodies bear a resemblance to railway coaches. On the outward journey one Ford does the hauling, and on the homeward journey the other. A second type is made up of two of another make of motor vehicle similarly back to back, but with a quite ordinary railway truck in between.

Yet another type is made up of ordinary railway coaches and trucks drawn by an engine similar to those used for shunting in station yards.

The average time taken for the run of about nine miles is half an hour. The line crosses the main road at several places, and the level crossings are heralded by alarming notices bearing the legend: "Beware of the trains—level crossing no gates." However, the railway has to suffer the indignity of having to stop its trains before each crossing in order to give warning.

THE COMPLETE ROAD HOG

MISADVENTURES OF MR. JOHN AMERY AND THE PENALTY.

Mr. John Amery, the twenty-year-old son of Mr. L. S. Amery, M.P., was disqualified at Westminster Police Court from holding a motor licence for five years.

He was also ordered to pay fines and costs amounting to £25 for motoring offences.

Mr. Barker, prosecuting, stated that there were, he believed, seventy convictions against Mr. John Amery for motor-car offences, and this showed that he was defiant of motor-car laws.

"I think now," said Mr. Boyd, the magistrate, giving his decision, "that the sooner Mr. Amery's career as a motorist is checked, the better for everybody."

The allegations in the summonses were dangerous driving, failing to stop, failing to produce a certificate of insurance, and failing to produce a driving licence.

Not In Court.

The case was first called a week ago, when Mr. Amery did not appear, and it was then adjourned.

Mr. Amery was not present in court being in France, and Mr. St. John Hutchinson, defending, asked whether the magistrate would take a plea of guilty in his absence and deal with the case.

Mr. Barker said that the alleged offences occurred on August 9, in Church-street, Chelsea, when a police constable saw Mr. Amery crossing the King's-road in a motor-car.

The constable noticed that the Road Fund licence was out of date, and he stepped into the centre of the road and extended his arm for him to stop.

"Mr. Amery drove straight at him," added Mr. Barker, "suddenly accelerated, and swerved over to the off side so that the wheels mounted the pavement and the constable had to jump aside in order not to be knocked down."

"Disgraceful."

Mr. Amery continued down Church-street, and the policeman afterwards saw him at a garage, where he said, "I know nothing about it." Mr. Amery was seen on August 9 by a police sergeant, and he then replied, "I may call evidence to show that I was twenty miles away from Chelsea at that time."

Mr. Hutchinson, addressing the magistrate on behalf of Mr. Amery, said that what his client actually did was to behave in a disgraceful manner to this policeman.

"Boys of twenty often do very foolish things," he added. "The convictions which have been proved are most of them what might be called ordinary motoring convictions."

"JIMMY" WALKER RETURNS

GREAT WELCOME GIVEN BY ADMIRERS

SUPPORT PROMISED TO CANDIDATE

New York, Oct. 9.—Ex-Mayor James J. Walker is not out of politics, he said on his arrival from Europe to-day, but will stand aside for a year and watch others play the game.

Improved in health and putting on "Walker smile," the former Mayor spoke briefly to 20,000 admirers who met him at the pier when he stepped off the steamship Rex. He declared he would support Judge John P. O'Brien and do everything in his power to further his election.

"I am not a Walker man, but a party man through and through and I intend to support the party ticket," he said. "The party has nominated an excellent candidate, a man of integrity and great ability. He will make a great mayor for New York."

As Mr. Walker left the pier, the crowd cheered and declared it would support him for any office he might seek.

"As Dapper as Ever."

New York, Oct. 9.—Mr. James J. Walker, ex-Mayor of New York, arrived back from a flying trip to Europe to-day on board the liner Rex and received a great welcome from his supporters.

A special tug, flying the Irish flag and with a jazz band on board playing "Happy Days are Here Again," met the liner and brought Jimmie Walker, as dapper as ever, to shore. He was given a warm welcome by his fellow-passengers, including the Maharajah of Indore, and the actress, Miss Ina Claire, before he left the boat.

The ex-Mayor embraced all the Tammany leaders who had turned out to welcome him before motor-ing home with his wife.

Two days prior to his arrival Mr. Walker radioed to Mr. John F. Curry, Tammany leader, asking that his name be removed from consideration as a candidate for re-nomination as Mayor. His despatch read: "I request that my name be withheld from the Convention, and this decision is based solely on my willingness to put the interests of the party above my personal desires."

The re-nomination of Mr. Walker, who resigned on September 1 in the midst of hearings before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to oust him, was vigorously opposed by the State's chief executive, now the Democratic Presidential candidate, and Mr. Alfred E. Smith, former Governor. After the receipt of Mr. Walker's dramatic message the Democratic City Convention nominated Mr. John P. O'Brien, who is a personal friend of Mr. Al Smith.

The exchange of radiograms between Mr. Curry and the ex-Mayor disclosed that the Tammany chief and Mr. John H. McGooey, Brooklyn leader, had offered Jimmie the mayoral nomination in the face of the Smith-Roosevelt opposition.

CONSTITUTION OF GERMANY

CHANCELLOR TO DISCUSS REFORM MEASURES

PROPOSED RAISING OF AGE-LIMIT

Berlin, Oct. 9.—The question of the reform of the Weimar Constitution which the present Government considers a vital necessity, will probably be materially advanced towards its realisation during the coming week on the occasion of Chancellor von Papen's first official visit to Munich, the capital of Bavaria, Germany's second largest state.

It is understood that the Chancellor is prepared to discuss the issue with the Bavarian Government and to advocate certain principles for the reform which are thought to be acceptable to Bavaria and to the other state governments.

After that the projects is expected to make during the next few weeks sufficient progress so as to enable the government to submit a draft to the next Reichstag, although it is expected that serious difficulties will be encountered there and that the issue will have eventually to be submitted directly to the nation for decision on by a referendum.

The Two Main Points.

As far as the electoral law is concerned, the two main points of the proposed reform are said to be in respect to the age-limit which is regarded as too low as at present every male or female German citizen has the franchise after reaching the age of 20, and a return to the pre-war age limit of 25 being regarded as highly advisable.

The second point is in respect to the present system of proportional representation. This is considered to have failed in practice, especially because the electorate and the candidates put up by the various parties.

Another point at issue is the question of a change from the present large constituencies to smaller ones together with the abolition of the system of party lists. Whereas the majority of the parties are expected to accept these reforms, strong opposition to them is bound to come from the extremist parties, the National-Socialists and the Communists.

WHITE RAJAH'S DAUGHTER

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS LEONORA BROOKE

London, Sept. 23.—Miss Leonora Brooke, the 21-year-old daughter of the Rajah of Sarawak, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, whose engagement is reported to Mr. Max Auzan, a wealthy Rumanian, said to-day: "The wedding will not take place for some little time yet. We hope to be married as soon as I return from Sarawak, which will be between April and June. The wedding will take place in London."

Miss Brooke's father is the only white rajah, and rules a country of 40,000 square miles with a population of 500,000. His wife, the Rance, is a daughter of the second Viscount Essex.

Miss Brooke is known among the natives of Sarawak as "Princess Gold."

Mr. Auzan who is 43 years old, has a vast fortune partly inherited and partly acquired by his own business activities. He is the vice-chairman of the Telephone Company of Rumania, and proprietor of the Auzan Steel Works.

DETECTION OF FIRE IN SHIPS

NEW APPLIANCES TESTED

Representatives of British and foreign shipping companies were present in the Arcadian in Southampton on Sept. 23rd, to see a demonstration of a new appliance for the detection and extinction of fire on board ship. The apparatus, which was demonstrated with complete success, makes use of the sensitivity to light of the selenium cell such as is used for sound reproduction in films. On several occasions the actual detection of fire was accomplished through the medium of light variation. When smoke issued from the hold a compact electrically-operated machine started an alarm bell and a visible sign was flashed to a convenient place on the bridge. Carbon dioxide was conveyed to the seat of the fire. The appliances are produced by the Engineering Marketing Services.

The Children's Corner

BY UNCLE JACK

SEA ANEMONES

Every one agrees that the loveliest creatures which live in the sea are the anemones. They are like the most beautiful living flowers, and are gay with every shade and variety of colour.

You will find them in quiet rock-pools, and as you look down on them you will see all their tentacles spread out and waving in the water, rather like the long, fine petals of a "ragged" chrysanthemum. If, however, you touch them the petals all fold over, and you will look down on an uninteresting lump of coloured jelly.

The lower part of the body of a sea anemone is a strong sucker, by means of which it clings to the rock or stone, out of which it really looks as if it were growing.

The commonest of the anemones is the smooth anemone. You will find lots of them closed up, and here and there one of them will be open. Now, if you can find a little dead shrimp and drop it in among the tentacles you will see them all curl over towards the centre, where the creature's mouth is open, pushing the bit-bit as they go until it disappears.

After that the anemone will remain firmly closed for nearly two days, and then, if you are lucky and there at the right time, you may see the tentacles slowly unfolding again and pushing out the shell of the shrimp, because it is too hard to be digested.

A TALE OF MR. BONG

Now hark to the tale of my friend, Mr. Bong. His hair and his whiskers were quite a yard long. They grew and they grew from one year to the next till poor Mr. Bong became terribly vexed.

While pushing a mower one fine summer's day, he tripped and he fell, and believe me, I pray, When I tell you that mower continued to spin till it cut all the hair off his head and his chin!

SMILE A WHILE

Dad's Lightning.

"YOU should see my father hammering nails," said Alec. "He does it like lightning!"

"That's funny, isn't it? Lightning can't do that!" said Edgar.

"True," said Alec, "but you see, lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

What is the longest word in the English language? Smiles, of course, because there's a mile between the first and last letters.

MOTHER NATURE

THE HYRAX

Do you know that one of the elephant's closest relatives is a creature no bigger than a rabbit? This dwarf cousin of the jungle giant is the hyrax, which lives among the rocks in Africa and Syria.

It is a sturdy wee animal, with stumpy legs, small, rounded ears, short fur, the merest knob of a tail—and hoofs!

That is the big secret. Upon the peculiar structure of its feet, which resemble those of the elephant, and are, therefore, unlike those of any other ungulate or hoofed animal, it claims its curious kinship.

Moreover, the African elephant possesses four toes on each front foot, and but three on either hind foot. These toes are furnished with broad flattened nails.

The hyrax has a like number of toes, and the nails are of similar formation—except that the innermost toes on the hind feet are equipped with a curved claw for toilet purposes.

In addition to its relationship with the elephant, the hyrax boasts two other strange branches on his family tree. His jaws link him with the tapir, and his grinding teeth with the rhinoceros!

There is certainly more to a hyrax than meets the eye!

SHORT AND SWEET

Take a pair of sparkling eyes,
Take them, anywhere you like,
Make them into batter pies,
Take them on a country like.
Give them to any one you see,
But DON'T GIVE them to me!

LETTER "D" PUZZLE

1. Writing Table;
2. The Ring;
3. System of Signals;
4. Public Highway.

Definitions of the words to be placed in the spaces are given. Can you place them in the proper spaces, so that the letter "D's" will fit?

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Chamois is a species of antelope, and a native of Western Europe and Asia. It is not much larger than a goat; it lives in mountainous regions, and possesses wonderful leaping power so that it is very difficult to capture. Its flesh is much esteemed and from its skin chamois leather is made.

Hoopoe is a peculiar bird with a movable semi-circular crest on top of its head, and a long slightly curved bill. It is a native of Africa, and one of the six known species migrates to Europe, occasionally visiting Britain!

Potoroo is an animal, so like the Kangaroo, as to be called the Kangaroo rat. It is only found in west Australia and Tasmania!

ADVENTURE

I should like to fly away,
To far lands where night is day,
Take a ship right out of reach
And land on a luscious leeward beach:
Cruise islands in the sun,
Parrot trees and fishing fun,
All along the Spanish Main,
Coconuts that fall like rain;
Crocodiles that blink and stare,
Humming birds that paint the air;
And—among the shining pearls
Little nigger-boys and girls
All the things one cannot get
In the nursery when it's wet.
Now I think I'll send my wishes,
Speeding off like flying fishes.

Why did the kitchen sink?—Because it saw the coal scuttle.

THEATRE NOTES SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL THEATRE

The solid success achieved by the new Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon in the first year of its existence is strikingly demonstrated by some preliminary figures of the attendances during the Birthday and Summer Festivals. The Birthday Festival, opened by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, brought 40,000 spectators in 5 weeks. The Summer Festival opened on June 27th, and by the end of it—Sept. 10th, 84,000 people had attended the plays. In the last 4 months, also, 43,000 people paid one shilling to look round the theatre without seeing a performance.

American Plays in London.

This Autumn a number of American plays will be seen in London. "Another Language" by Rose Franken, a great success in New York, will be produced under Gilbert Miller's management with Herbert Marshall and Edna Best in the leading parts. John Van Druten has altered it slightly for English presentation.

J. B. Priestly has a new play ready, which he describes as "typical" for the reason that none of the characters have any money. Roundabout is to be produced by Auriol Lee. Mr. Priestly is also busy on a play described as a satirical drama.

"Wild Violets."

Drury Lane has found it necessary to instal a revolving stage for the production of "Wild Violets." This is from the German with music by Robert Stolz, the well-known Viennese musician. After the London presentation it will be produced in Berlin. The Anglicized version has been done by Desmond Carter and Hassard Short, who will also produce. The excellent handling by Mr. Short of "Waltzes from Vienna" was largely responsible for its success. The new show is in the nature of a musical opera.

Mr. Ivor Novello who has just returned from America after an absence of some months is making arrangements for the production of yet another play, possibly in January and his own appearance with Isabel Jeans.

The King and Queen have promised to attend the matinee Sir Gerald du Maurier is arranging to be held at Drury Lane Theatre on Nov. 8th, in aid of King George's Pension Fund. The play "Bulldog Drummond" will be performed by Royal Command on this occasion.

MEXICAN CHURCH DISPUTE

EXPULSION MOTION TO COME BEFORE CONGRESS.

Mexico City, October 9.—Congress will on Tuesday consider the memorial from the Vera Cruz legislature urging the expulsion of all priests on the grounds that they are enemy aliens.

The legislature contended that the State of Mexico is an enemy to Mexico and that the priests as citizens of that state should be expelled.

The memorial also urges that all Catholic churches, schools, convents and other property be seized and put to such cultural services as the Government may see fit.

The State of Jalisco, one of the strongest Catholic divisions of the entire country, is reported to be preparing a law limiting the number of priests according to the population. Some legislators have proposed that only one priest be allowed to function for each 50,000 of population.

Since the last conflict between State and Church resulting from a Papal encyclical address to Catholics in Mexico, a wave of agitation has swept the country calling for expulsion of priests.

Jalisco, which was formerly more friendly to the church than many other sections, now describes the priests as pernicious aliens and political leaders want the church swept out of the state.

EDUCATION FOR COMMERCE

QUALITY OF EDUCATIONAL EQUIPMENT

MR. ALFRED PITMAN'S
VIEWS

The International Congress on Commercial Education, which was held in London recently, served to focus attention on the importance of commercial education and to bring out its relationship with modern business.

Mr. Alfred Pitman, senior governing director of Sir Isaac Pitman and Sons, Ltd., was interviewed on commercial education and modern business.

"What are the special features in the development of commercial education during the past fifty years?" Mr. Pitman was asked.

"One is the manner in which it has become increasingly recognised as an integral part of the educational system of the United Kingdom," he replied. "There was a time when it was thought that education for commerce could be ignored by those who are responsible for the education of young men who are intended for the business world in administrative and executive positions."

"In a sentence, then, educationists must take increasing notice of the quality of the educational equipment of those who are intended for the business life."

"Undoubtedly," answered Mr. Pitman.

"Is it likely that education for business will become compulsory as is elementary education to-day?"

"There is not the slightest doubt," he replied, "that intense competition in the commercial and industrial worlds and the difficulties that arise out of necessary attempts that are made to consolidate national prosperity and to progress with the times will impel both educationists and business men to co-operate in so far as business training is concerned. Again, it is impossible to assert with certainty at the present time the exact type of system of education for business that will evolve from the facilities that are available to-day."

"There are experience educationists who think that the outcome will be a system of commercial education built into the educational system of Britain, and primarily, if not wholly, maintained by the municipalities, thus making private enterprise unnecessary. And there are other educationists, equally experienced, who think that commercial education must in part, remain the primary concern of private enterprise."

There is common meeting ground in the contention that commercial education must necessarily tend more and more to become part and parcel of the educational system of the United Kingdom. In other words, as the years pass it will be recognised that it is as essential to educate young men and women for business as it is to maintain a system of education that ensures that every adult citizen is the possessor of a measure of education that enables him or her to meet the obligations of common citizenship."

FOREIGN MINISTER OF RUMANIA

SENSATION OVER
APPOINTMENT
OF M. TITULESCU

Bucharest, Oct. 10.—A sensation was caused here to-day by the official announcement that former Rumanian Minister to London and chief delegate to the League of Nations, M. Titulescu, has been offered the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the present Vayda Cabinet and that he has accepted the offer.

The announcement which took political circles completely by surprise was followed by an interview between the Premier and representatives of the Press in which the former declared that the appointment of M. Titulescu will entail no change whatever in Rumania's foreign policy.—a declaration which is interpreted as meaning that the Government has resolved to reject, in accordance with M. Titulescu's advice, the proposal of the League of Nations to assist Rumania in her present financial difficulties by granting her a loan on condition that foreign experts be appointed by the League to supervise the Rumanian finances.

The Premier declared that it had been found intolerable that the Foreign Office was unable to pass any decisions without having previously sounded M. Titulescu's opinion. M. Titulescu, who is at present staying in Switzerland, is expected back in the capital on Tuesday to take up his duty.

HELP TO JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS

SPECIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY GOVERNMENT

Tokyo, Oct. 10.—In view of the depressed economic conditions in the Empire, the government to-day appointed a special committee of 30 officials to help all Japanese who desire to emigrate to Manchuria, Brazil or any of the countries where there are already Japanese settlements. The Government plans to assist some 10,000 emigrants.

The newly-appointed officials will work under the Ministry of Overseas Affairs. They will instruct the prospective emigrants how to maintain health, establish good sanitary conditions and set up an enjoyable social life in the new land. They will be encouraged to establish schools for their children and will be assisted. In their preparations for going to distant lands the emigrants will be protected against fraud and groups will be accompanied by one or more of the officials who will see that they are not preyed upon by land swindlers.

WIRELESS SET AS A PRAYER BOOK

"RELIGIOUS" PRISONER'S POSSESSION.

Sydney.—A prisoner's religious fervour attracted the notice of the officials of the Geelong goal, in Victoria, but when they examined the prayer book which he was always studying they found that it was a disguised wireless set.

The book, with an incised cross on the front, measured four inches long, three inches wide, and one inch thick. By opening the back a completely crystal set was revealed which clearly picked up local stations. It was confiscated.

Prisoners in Long Bay Gaol, New South Wales, also had a secret wireless set, which they used to obtain racing results. With the aid of the set they gambled on the horses, using their weekly ration of gaol tobacco as the stakes.

THE POPE TO VISIT MILAN

Milan, October 11.—The city is agog with excitement at the rumour that His Holiness the Pope intends paying Milan a visit at the end of this month. This would be the first time that the Pope has left Rome. Reports to this effect are current even in episcopal circles but so far it has been impossible to get them confirmed or officially denied.

NECKLACE THIEF SENTENCED

YOUNG FRENCH GIRL RE-CEIVES PRISON TERM.

Brussels, October 9.—Echoes of a crime committed on the famous Blue train between Calais and Ventimille on the Italian frontier last March when Lady Howard lost a G.24,000 pearl necklace consisting of 89 fine pearls were heard in court here yesterday with a pretty French girl named Yvonne March was sentenced to one year in gaol and it was through her efforts in Brussels wearing the necklace. She proved to be the accomplice of an international crook and swindler known as Comitto. He is now in the hands of the French authorities and will be tried by them.

An examination into the statistics of the damage caused by the Sino-Japanese hostilities in Shanghai and Woosung, which have been compiled by the Bureau of Social Affairs, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Public Accountants Association, has been started by these three organisations in an effort to obtain a more detailed and accurate record. It is expected that items concerning facilities among civilians in the war areas, damage to estates, properties, public utilities enterprises, etc., will be completed at the end of this month.

FRANCO-GERMAN TRADE TREATY

MATTER TO BE TAKEN UP BY THE CABINET.

Paris, Oct. 9.—The rumours current for a long time that the French Government is contemplating the denunciation of the Franco-German commercial treaty, were confirmed to-day by official quarters in connection with the visit on Saturday to Premier Herriot by a deputation of French export industries and headed by the former member of the Chamber, M. Fougere.

In this conference with the Premier, the deputation insisted on the need for a thoroughgoing revision of France's tariff policy, to which Premier Herriot replied with the assurance that the matter would be taken up by the Cabinet at once.

The Minister of Commerce M. Durand, it is reported in this connection has already drafted a provisional tariff which is to come into force after the expiration of the Franco-German commercial treaty, which is regarded as the cornerstone of France's whole tariff system. The new provisional settlement would then remain in force pending the completion of the plans for a thorough reorganisation of the tariff system, which is already under way.

As regards the Franco-German treaty, it is declared in Paris commercial and industrial circles that most of its benefits accrue to Germany and that the advantages granted to the Reich handicapped French in her tariff negotiations with other countries.

FANTASTIC BIDS AT KREUGER SALE

3 GUINEAS FOR SCISSORS.

Stockholm, Sept. 10.—The sale of Ivar Kreuger's private property was continued to-day. The room was crammed with eager curio hunters, and even the smallest objects are realising fantastic prices. A pair of steel scissors with the "Match King's" name engraved upon them fetched 3 guineas; ordinary kitchen knives worth no more than 5 sh when now brought almost as many pounds.

CHEAPEST MONEY YET

GOVT. £100 BILLS SOLD
AT 296-18s.

The Government borrowed on Treasury bills at the cheapest terms ever recorded. Preliminary results of the usual Friday bill tender were on the basis of only about 8s. per cent. per annum. This means that the Government has sold its £100 3-months bills at 296-18s. Such an extraordinarily low rate is a striking reflection of the easy money conditions, not even paralleled by the cheap money period of the twenties. The lowest rate recorded at that time was 12s. per cent. in 1926. A year ago the Government had to pay 23-18s. 3-37d. per cent. on its Treasury bills.

General Oong Chai Yuan, commander of the 158th Brigade of the 19th Route Army, arrived in Shanghai from Fukien last Thursday en route to America to study aviation conditions. In an interview with members of the Press, General Oong stated that in order to strengthen her national defence, China must build a strong air force. General Oong formerly studied aviation in France, and he was leaving for America shortly for the purpose of pursuing his studies.

FAMOUS CHEMIST & ZAM-BUK

A RARE SOOTHING, HEALING
& ANTISEPTIC OINTMENT.

Doctors, Surgeons, Physicians, Nurses, and First-aid experts all over the world speak in the highest terms of Zam-Buk. An investigation by that most eminent of modern chemists Dr. J. Lewkowitch, Ph.D., M.A., F.I.C., reveals many interesting facts.

In that it is made from valuable medicinal saps and extracts exclusively of herbal origin Zam-Buk differs from all ordinary ointments. It contains no animal fat, no lead, zinc, mercury or other coarse mineral compounds (hitherto regarded as essential in treatment of sores and wounds). Zam-Buk is more refined, easy of absorption by the pores of the skin, and always conforms to the highest standard of medicinal efficiency.

For its soothing, healing and antiseptic qualities Zam-Buk represents the greatest achievement obtained in this department of medical science. Zam-Buk is invaluable for cuts, bruises and burns; whilst such disorders of the skin as eczema, itch, psoriasis, pimples, ulcers, rashes, soreness, scalp troubles, etc., yield rapidly to its gentle but positive action.

Smear lightly over the skin, Zam-Buk sets into operation the healing powers which it contains. It begins its great curative work by exterminating the poisonous bacilli which lie at the root of so many skin disorders. Having completed the antiseptic of a wound or sore, Zam-Buk promotes the growth of new healthy skin. All medicine dealers and dispensaries sell Zam-Buk in handy size boxes. Agents: Messrs. Gilman and Co., Ltd., Des Vœux Rd., Hong Kong.

AIM AT DRAGON THRONE

TOKYO'S PLAN FOR RESTORATION OF EMPIRE?

Tokyo, Oct. 12.—Mr. Ting Eih Yuan, the private representative of Mr. Pu Yi, chief executive of Manchukuo, is quoted as saying that the "formation of Manchukuo is merely a preliminary step to the restoration of the monarchy in China."

Mr. Ting is at present in Tokyo, where he has broken his journey from Changchun to Geneva. Mr. Ting is a member of the Anfu clique.

This amazing statement is considered here to add significance to recent despatches received from a foreign source in Changchun, which assert that "influential" Chinese emissaries from a number of provinces south of the Great Wall, called on Mr. Henry Pu Yi, Chief Executive of Manchukuo, Mr. Cheng Hsiao Hsu, the Prime Minister of the new State, and Mr. Hsich Chien Shih, the Foreign Minister, shortly after the Japanese recognition of Manchukuo, and that these emissaries expressed their belief that Chihli, Shantung, Shanai and other provinces were prepared to join Manchukuo.

Boy Emperor's Ambition.

According to these despatches it is declared that Mr. Pu Yi, encouraged by the statements of these emissaries, entertains fantastic hopes of regaining the Dragon Throne before long. To this end, it is alleged, the first step will be a campaign against Jehol, "which Japanese troops are expected to carry out at the end of this year or early next spring."

It is further reported that Mr. Pu Yi's advisers are convinced that the only way to combat the spread of communism and to restore the unity and stability of China lies in a return to a monarchical form of government. They are hopeful that if Mr. Pu Yi succeeds in aligning the northern provinces with Manchukuo, the whole of China will respond.

PLOT TO SLAY GENERAL MUTO

ROUND-UP OF COMMUNISTS IN MUKDEN.

Mukden, Oct. 7.—Japanese police to-day declared that they had thwarted a plot to assassinate General Nobuyoshi Muto, Japanese Ambassador to Manchukuo, when they raided a group of Communists.

In a general round-up of radical suspects last night, the police arrested four Chinese and two Korean of the Mukden Communist local committee.

Some of the suspects are said to have confessed that there was a Communist plot to murder General Muto and officers of the Kwantung garrison.

A large quantity of hand bills, letters and secret communications were seized in the raid, it was said. The police are not attempting to find other members of the committee.

Casualties Compared.

Mukden, Oct. 7.—According to an announcement by the Kwantung Army, the casualties, both Japanese military and Chinese Volunteers, in 64 engagements since spring, are as follows:—

Japanese army:—15 dead, and 62 injured seriously or slightly.

Chinese Volunteers:—3,040 dead, some 7,280 injured seriously or slightly and 33 captured.

REBELLION IN TIBET

PEOPLE RISE AGAINST THE DALAI LAMA

VIGOROUS OPPOSITION FROM MERCHANTS

Calcutta, Oct. 7.—The Dalai Lama is reported to have fled from Tibet, following heavy fighting along the east borders of Khari Province.

New restrictions, more drastic than ever in recent years, have been imposed by order of the Dalai Lama during the past few months, arousing the vigorous opposition of merchants and traders whose livelihoods were taken from them by the ban.

Recently another order was issued refusing permit any man of "fighting age" to leave Tibet and this, coupled with the commercial restrictions, so incensed the people that an open rebellion resulted.

The Dalai Lama, who is the secular ruler of his country, as distinguished from the Panchen Lama, the spiritual leader, is believed to have sought refuge in China, although there is no definite information as to where he has gone. Since the title first was conferred in 1576 by one of the Mongol khans, he lot of the Dalai Lama has been a hard one.

The former Dalai Lama fled to Peiping in 1904, leaving Tibet just before the arrival of the armed British expedition under Col. F. E. Younghusband. In 1904, Britain having decided to take drastic steps to counteract the growing Russian influence and an anti-Chinese and anti-British policy. He returned to Lhasa, his capital, in 1909, only to flee shortly after to India when China sent an army with the avowed intention of making the Tibetan administration entirely Chinese. British intervention led to the withdrawal of the Chinese forces, however, and in 1912 the Dalai was restored to his position.

In 1921 the present Dalai Lama ejected the Panchen Lama from Tibet, and to-day, while the Dalai Lama was fleeing before an uprising of his own people, the Panchen Lama was being received in Peiping by the Mongol Lamas with the highest honours. His visit to Peiping is his third and is for the purpose of conducting a prayer meeting for peace in China.—United Press.

EXTERMINATION OF "REDS"

HUNG HU DEFENCES TO BE STRENGTHENED

Hankow, October 12.—The Hupch Provincial Government has formulated plans for strengthening of the defence of the Hung Hu (lake) region.

The important outlets of the lake are to be blockaded so as to stop food supplies to the scattered brigands in the lake.

All able-bodied men in the region are to be organised into anti-"Red" Volunteer Corps. Parts of the lake will then be combed step by step, so as to totally exterminate the marauders.

Bandits eager to turn over a new leaf will be allowed to surrender voluntarily within a specified period. At the expiration of the period, they will be executed upon arrest.

A Water Police Bureau for the Hung Hu (lake) region is also to be organized.—Kuo Min.

Chang Tien Kiu, issued a joint circular telegram on October 3 declaring their anti-Manchukuo attitude. The telegram was addressed to General Chang Hsueh Liang and other leaders of the Nanking Government.

It is reported that General Chang Tien Kiu is concentrating his troops in the district on the right bank of the Nohai River. As the result, the Japanese troops stationed here have begun to show signs of activities.

SHANGHAI-NANKING TRAIN SERVICE

NOON EXPRESS AGAIN IN OPERATION

Nanking, October 12.—The noon express between Nanking and Shanghai will be resumed on the 18th, according to an announcement by the Nanking-Shanghai Railway Administration. This daily service was suspended during the Sino-Japanese hostilities in Shanghai and has not been restored hitherto in view of the shortage of rolling stock, part of which had been damaged by Japanese bombs.

One express train will leave Nanking for Shanghai daily at 12.30 p.m. and another will leave Shanghai for Nanking at 12.35 p.m.

With reference to the construction of the new railway depot at Shanghai in place of the old North Station, it is learnt that the Reconstruction Committee of the Nanking-Shanghai and Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo. Railways has decided to build a temporary station at Chapei on the Sungkunguan Road, near the Sung Chiao Jun Gardens. Work has already begun and is expected to be completed in four months.

In the meantime, preparations for a permanent station at Chenju are being made in accordance with plans of the Committee. It is stated that the new station will be the only one of its kind, both in size and in equipment, in the Far East, and there will be a subway underneath the platform. The cornerstone will be officially laid on New Year's Day.—Kuo Min.

SUDDEN END OF A GENERAL

QUICK EXECUTION RUMOURED

Foochow, Sept. 20.—It is freely rumoured in Foochow to-day that Chen Kuo Hui has been shot. He arrived in Foochow three days ago by aeroplane and was immediately arrested; the following day he was executed. No news concerning him has been allowed to appear in the local newspapers, and there was even an embargo on outgoing telegrams, but there seems every likelihood that the rumour is well-founded. It is also said that General Fang Hsin Tao, the Vice-Chairman of the Provincial Government, who was lately apparently working hand in glove with Chen Kuo Hui, has decamped.

Whatever the facts are at the moment, it is certain that Chen Kuo Hui is responsible for a large proportion of the impoverishment and misery of Fukien, especially in the Southeast. He collected great quantities of money on pretext of building roads, bridges, schools, etc., but most of the cash went into his own pockets. Thus the strong action taken by the Nineteenth Route Army is widely applauded and augurs well for their further attempts to clean up the Province.

It is reported that Communists from Kiangsi are again threatening Fukien from the Northwest, and that a body of 300 men belonging to the 56th Division were surrounded and killed. But latest advices indicate that the Government troops have the situation in hand and that the Communists are retreating.—N.C.D.N.

GENERAL FEN STILL IN SECLUSION

Peiping, October 12.—General Feng Ya Hsiang is still at Kalgan and may proceed to Tating, northern Shanai, in the near future, according to a telegram received here from General Sung Che Yuan, Chairman of the Chahar Provincial Government and a former subordinate of General Feng.

In his message, General Sung states that General Feng is staying at a local hostel in the capacity of a private citizen. General Feng refuses to discuss public affairs and prefers to remain in seclusion.—Kuo Min.

CHINESE GENERALS CO-OPERATE

AGAINST MANCHUKUO FORCES

Peiping, October 12.—As a result of arrangements made by the leaders of the various anti-Japanese armies in the North-east, six army corps respectively under Generals Feng Chan Hai, Wang To Lin, Ting Chao, Ma Chan Shan, Su Ping Wen and Tang Shu Wu will be organized to facilitate operations against the combined Japanese and Manchukuo units.

General Li Tu is inspecting his units in the North-eastern part of Kirin and is about to establish contact with the Heilungkiang units under General Ma Chan Shan for a concerted movement.

To reinforce the Heilungkiang, National Salvation Army under General Chang Tien Kiu, which is engaged in severe fighting with the Japanese at Lulacchi, 8 miles west of Taitaihar, General Su Ping Wen left Hailar on the 10th for Chalan-tun and telegraphed to General Ma Chan Shan to rush his men to the front.

8,000 Heilungkiang Volunteers under Nan Ting Fang, who stormed Chingcheng and Payen from Siao-lingho on the night of the 8th, clashed with the Japanese units at Tuihshiaoakuo the next day. One Heilungkiang regiment has been detached from Mulan to reinforce the Volunteers.—Kuo Min.

IMPERIAL TOMB RIFLED

Peiping, October 12.—It is reported that the Imperial Tomb of the ancestors of Prince Tsai Hsun of the Ching Dynasty has been rifled by bandits.

Opening the tomb by a bomb, the robbers seized more than 300 rare pearls, 5 jade buddhas, 8 gold buddhas, 18 silver ingots weighing 500 ounces each and a large number of other valuables.—Kuo Min.

JAPANESE "PRISON" LABOUR

HOME OFFICE TO STOP SEMI-SLAVE TRADE

Tokyo.—The Home Office is beginning to direct earnest attention to the abolition of a very cruel form of compulsory labour which is popularly called the kangoku beya (prison cells) system. This system is particularly in vogue in some parts of Hokkaido. Recruiting agents are everywhere in Japan. Attracted by the inviting advertisements and notices, jobless labourers fall easy victims to these agents. Given fifty or sixty yen in advance, they are sent to Hokkaido and made inmates of what are called kangoku beya, which are run by heartless bosses. Poor labourers are no better than slaves, and any attempts to escape often mean death. So close a watch is kept over them that the idea of escape is almost impossible. The system has, indeed, long stood as a disgrace to Japanese civilization.

Decayed.

The intense business depression and the consequent growth of unemployment in the country have increased the number of the labourers who are decayed into kangoku beya. The Home Office has at last been awakened to the necessity of doing away with this system, and has instructed Mr. Sagami, Governor of Hokkaido, to make inquiries into the state of ill-treatment of labourers and the "slave traffic."

14,000 Victims.

The Governor has just submitted his report, according to which there has been a marked increase of late in the number of such labourers, their number now totalling about 14,000. The Hokkaido Government has been doing all it can to ameliorate the conditions, but its measures have so far brought no tangible results.

The Home Office is now contemplating radical revision of the laws for the control of recruiting of labourers and for the private employment agencies, while forbidding the advance of money to labourers on condition of employment on certain works. In the meantime, police powers will be brought into play to put an end to the kangoku beya system.

from the projection room drove the audience into a panic. Others in various parts of the Roof Garden joined in a stampede for the stairways. The fire was subsequently extinguished by the fire brigade which rushed promptly to the scene. Among the four killed were two men, a woman and a child.

The manager of the establishment has been detained by the police pending investigation.

The Daily Press.

HONG KONG, OCTOBER 18, 1932.

HONG KONG AND REFERENCE DUTIES

A CYNICAL poet, with an unfortunate perception of human nature, wrote the line,

"O the brave music of a distant drum."

But like all clever epigrams, the phrase contains error as well as truth. The patriotism, which it mocks, is a real thing to most of us who live in the Colonies. There are certainly many people in whom the quality of patriotism is deficient, but they mostly stay at home, and either stand aloof from public affairs, or else adorn the local Labour association. If one lives in a Crown Colony one has to know something of the Empire, and how it is governed, and the material prosperity that it yields to many individuals. Some of us may, therefore, feel a little disappointed to find that Hong Kong has made no enthusiastic response to the modest demands imposed on the Colony as the outcome of the Ottawa Conference.

The proposed addition of twenty per cent. of the C.I.F. value of foreign cars to their licence fees has been received with dismay. It is argued that Hong Kong is a free port, and, in our exceptional position and circumstances, any infringement upon that status must have unfavourable reactions. It is urged that British cars, as a whole, are not designed for local conditions; that the service facilities are deficient, and that British manufacturers, having little interest in this small and peculiar market, are quite content to leave it to Americans, who value it and are in a position to meet its requirements. That is all very well, but it was not in such spirit that the Ottawa results, which we all approve, in so far as they affected other people, were achieved. Ottawa was a call for immediate sacrifice in the cause of ultimate gains. Some, if not all of these arguments, apply to goods imported into every Colony under a scheme of preference duties. Great Britain is herself giving a worthy lead, breaking or loosening old-established trade relations in the interests of Inter-Imperial commerce. Surely Hong Kong will not prove the sole laggard!

Careful stock is certainly being taken locally of the probable effect of the duty; of what we are expected to concede, and what advantage we may hope to gain. The Colonial brandy concession is not more than a gesture. Few of us drink brandy, but those who have the habit will no doubt continue to pay extra for the privilege of obtaining the familiar products of France.

Quite possibly, the Government does not view a diminution of the motor trade with any alarm. If the number of foreign cars sold is not diminished then a useful source of revenue will be tapped, perhaps enabling a bolder outlay on many overdue public works; if the British manufacturers jump in upon their opportunity and capture the market then the duty will be fully justified. Even if the net result is that many people who would have had cars go without, the position has its compensations. Fewer cars mean less money for road upkeep, and, if people who really cannot afford cars are deterred from an unjustifiable extravagance, they should, in the end, be converted to the Imperial principle, which has made them either savers or wiser spenders upon necessities, instead of a deteriorating luxury.

Patriotism, in the flesh, is apt to be less pleasing than in the spirit of rhetoric. The Empire has embarked upon a patriotic programme, and we have got to get used to it, and work it with such foresight and wisdom that solid advantages will accrue. Ottawa has its hard side, demanding sacrifice at the outset, if the results are not to be negative, or exploited for the advantage of the few. There are, in fact, two kinds of patriotism, symbolised, perhaps, by (Continued at foot of next column.)

DISASTER TO R.A.F.
BOMBER

TWO KILLED

SACRIFICE FOR COMRADES

London, October 8.—Another terrible R.A.F. disaster occurred today (near Guildford, and had it not been for the self-sacrifice and heroism of the chief pilot nothing could have saved the lives of any of the occupants of the giant bomber which crashed.

Details are lacking, but it appears that one of the latest type of R.A.F. bombers was flying over Guildford in the direction of Godalming when engine trouble developed.

The pilot endeavoured to put matters right, and thought he had succeeded when one of the engines suddenly failed entirely.

Chief Pilot Officer Brian Page, who was in charge, apparently told the crew to jump for it, adding that he would try and keep the plane under control until they got clear.

Four men parachuted to earth and made a safe landing, but the second pilot jumped too late.

Failed to Open.

His parachute failed to open and he met a terrible death.

Hundreds of people saw the men jump from the plane, and at first thought that the machine was out on practice work.

Within a few seconds of the second pilot crashing to earth, the huge leviathan of the air trembled and zig-zagged like a drunken thing and then lived to earth.

The survivors revealed the supreme heroism of Chief Pilot Officer Brian Page.

Realising that by the failure of one of his engines the plane was doomed, Page shouted, "Boys we are for it, you had better jump if you like."

"It's O.K. for you to jump, and I'll hold the plane until you are clear."

Hundreds of people near Godalming heard the misfiring of the plane's engines, and saw the four survivors leap from the machine and parachute gracefully to safety.

Rescue Impossible.

Believing this to be a demonstration the onlookers cheered excitedly, but their cheers died and turned to cries of horror when the second pilot, a man named Gully, who had stayed to assist Page jumped too late and fell to his death like a stone, the parachute having failed to open.

Then the plane dropped to earth and a thunderous explosion followed. Almost immediately the plane burst into flames, and the heroic pilot was consumed by the leaping flames.

The horrified spectators rushed to the scene but it was impossible to approach within many yards of the wrecked plane so intense was the heat, the flames all the while being fanned to a fury by a sharp breeze. Indeed it was not until two hours later that the body of the brave pilot was recovered, charred and unrecognisable.

One survivor declared, "Page could easily have escaped, but he sentenced himself to death to save us."

This is the 43rd R.A.F. fatality this year.

CROWN LAND SALES

Two lots of Crown land were sold at the P.W.D. yesterday. Inland Lot No. 3504, situated on the Shauiwan Road, east of Inland Lot No. 3218, was sold to Mr. Lee Yu Cheung, of Messrs. Lee Yu Kee, Des Vaux Road, for $23,500, the upset price being $21,000. The area has about 42,000 square feet and an annual rental of $772.

Inland Lot No. 3521, adjoining Kowloon Inland Lot No. 2197, on Ma Tau Wai Road, was sold to the architects, Messrs. Hensland and Gonsella, Koyamally Buildings, 20, Queen's Road Central, for the upset price of $2,700. The area is 2,232 square feet and it has an annual rental of $40.

the late Lord Rosebery, and the gentlemen who made big money in the War, and wrote stimulating articles for popular consumption. Since the British Empire is committed to patriotism, let it be gallant and not greedy patriotism. The human instincts, seen in simple form at a children's tea-party, are strong and obvious. But if a nation seeks to be Imperial, a place for foresight must be found, or the results will be most unhappy.

Trouble!

"My dear, I do not like that young man who has been taking you out so much."

"I know, Daddy, dear. The real trouble is he can't stand the sight of you."

A Hero of Real Life.

"To-day's hero of real life is Mohamed ben Mustapha, says a Home paper. Mohamed is an Algerian gentleman at present on a visit to Paris, who was unlucky enough to be arrested by the police as a vagabond, his identity papers not being quite in order. On the morning after his arrest he was invited, as a matter of routine, to have a bath. Such an idea, however, did not coincide with Mohamed's ideas of the fitness of things, and his outraged Algerian pride gave way to a demonstration of Algerian fury worthy of our most careful chronicling.

The Untamed.

"First, he drew a large knife and scattered his captors. Then, when they had returned reinforced in numbers, he brandished an iron bar which he had wrenched from a window. His attackers were still further reinforced by a gas squad, which poured several cylinders of tear-gas into the bathroom. The attackers then retired, and, returning, found Mohamed more violent than ever, and it was only by arming themselves with iron shields that they overpowered him and carried him off, still unwashed, to their strongest strong room. There, slightly dirtier from his titanic struggle, he probably still remains.

Nature's Proud Child.

"The next move will be with the police, and no doubt force of numbers will ultimately defeat this proud child of Nature. Our social conscience may applaud the victory of civilisation, for vagabonds in need of a bath, even if they do come from picturesque Algeria, are a disagreeable anachronism. But we salute Mohamed as the only man we have yet heard of who fulfilled the ambition of every normal child that he jolly well would not wash, no matter what anyone said or did."

Admiral Tomkinson.

Vice-Admiral Wilfred Tomkinson, C.B., M.V.O., who recently relinquished command of the Battle Cruiser Squadron, deserves the gratitude of the nation for his tactful handling of the situation at Invergordon last autumn, when, owing to the illness of Admiral Sir Michael Hodges, he was acting Commanding-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

His conduct on this occasion was warmly commended by the Admiralty. Thirty-two years ago Admiral Tomkinson was serving in China with Sir Roger Keyes. Again, on St. George's Day, 1918, the two officers were together in the immortal raids of Zebrugge Ostend, and their old association was renewed in 1927 when Admiral Tomkinson became chief of staff to Sir Roger in the Mediterranean.

Admiral Tomkinson holds the gold medal of the Royal Humane Society for a particularly gallant attempt at life-saving just before the war, when he was serving in submarines.

"Bubbles" Now an Admiral.

His successor, Rear-Admiral William M. James, C.B., who hoisted his flag in H.M.S. Hood on August 15, is the original "Bubbles" of Sir J. E. Millais's famous picture, and grandson of the artist.

His last service afloat was as Chief of Staff, Atlantic Fleet. Admiral James is one of those many naval officers who combine sea-lore with ripe scholarship. His "British Navy in Adversity," published six years ago, is a masterly exposition of the naval side of the Revolutionary War in America, and is now accepted as a standard work on that subject.

Admiral James' flagship, Hood, has been diverted of the catapult and seaplane, which for a time occupied—and disfigured—her quarterdeck, completely spoiling the clear-cut profile of this symmetrical ship.

An Alpine Guide's Fate.

All Alpinists who have climbed with Alphonse Payot, the oldest of all the Chamonix guides, will be saddened to hear of his death. This very popular old man—he was eighty—was not climbing but gathering strawberries on a mountain side when he overbalanced and fell from a considerable height into a stream.

Some twenty years ago, an even more famous guide, Emil Rey, slipped on an ordinary path to his death. Strange, that two men so safe-footed in perilous places should die so simply.

The First Motor Licence.

One of the most treasured possessions of Mr. Henry Ford, who entered his 70th year last month, is the very first motor licence issued in the United States. It bears his own name.

When in 1893, he began to experiment with his first car (or the first of his contraptions that would work) in the streets of Detroit, public and police raised objections, and he overcame them only by getting this licence by way of a special permit from the mayor.

The Limit of Hitlerism?

English and German observers seem agreed that Hitlerism has reached its high tide mark, writes a Home correspondent. In the German elections Herr Hitler has polled 13,752,779 votes out of a total of 36,845,279 votes cast. That is an astounding feat, but at the presidential election, three months ago, he polled 13,400,000 votes. The Nazis, powerful as they are, will not be in a position to dictate to the new Reichstag by Parliamentary methods. Are they ready to resort to extra-Parliamentary methods? I think not.

Ten years ago Herr Hitler organised his forces for a march on Berlin from Munich, and although he led them with Ludendorff at his side, he was stopped by a volley from the troops on the Odessa plaza, whose quite junior officers had been told to give the order to fire, if necessary. Being German officers, after Herr Hitler's own heart, they obeyed the order. The Germans I met tell me that any organised rising by the Hitlerites would meet with the same treatment in Berlin. When Mussolini ordered the march on Rome there was no one to resist him. Poor Signor De Facta had surrendered before he was threatened.

The present Government of the Reich is composed of men of a very different calibre. They do not mean to resign, and if General von Schleicher gives the order to fire, the Reichswehr will obey, whenever it is given.

Nanking, Oct. 12.—The 47th anniversary of the kidnapping and confinement of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen by the Chinese Imperial Legation at London in 1895 was commemorated at a memorial service held at Central Party Headquarters yesterday. Mr. Shao Yuan Chung, President of the Legislative Yuan, after paying a tribute to Dr. Sun, called for his efforts in effecting the release of the late Party Leader, emphasising the indomitable courage and self-sacrificing spirit which Dr. Sun had consistently displayed throughout his life-long struggle for the cause of the Chinese National Revolution.

Few soliciting in Kowloon, six women were fined by Mr. Butters at Kowloon Magistrate's yesterday. The women were seen by Inspector A. V. Baker and a military patrol accosting some sailors at the junction of Jordan and Nathan Roads. One woman, who had a previous conviction for keeping a sly brothel, was fined $50 while the remaining five were fined $25 each. Three others who were brought before the Court were discharged, there being no evidence against them.

A Chinese who endeavoured during the week-end to pawn an obviously brand new woollen pull-over in a Queen's Road pawnshop, was detained, and subsequent inquiries proved that the garment had been stolen from the Chosen Company, in Des Vaux Road Central. Foo Tak, the man arrested, was found to have been once before in police hands, and at the Central Police Court yesterday, he was sentenced by Mr. Wynne-Jones to six weeks' hard labour.

An elderly woman appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistrate's yesterday with three stitches in her upper lip where it had been cut by a blow with a wooden clog. Keung Leung, 23, was accused of having caused the injury. On a point of compensation, Inspector Dick told his Worship that it was a Government doctor who attended to the woman, but an ambulance had been used for

Looking Back 25 Years.

A Court Martial was opened yesterday morning on board H.M.S. Tamar concerning the stranding of H.M.S. Flora in Hong Kong Harbour on August 28. The Court was composed of Commander R. H. S. Stokes, of the Tamar, (president), Captain S. V. Yorke de Hervey of the Kent, Captain S. E. Erskine of the Bedford, Captain C. L. Vaughan-Lee of the Astraea and Commander H. L. Mawbey of the Monmouth. The officers placed on trial were Captain Rowland Nugent and Lieutenant E. M. M. Grieve, and the charges against them was that by neglect they did strand the Flora on the night of August 28. Captain Tuke of the Monmouth prosecuted while prisoners' friends were Paymaster A. Gyles for Captain Nugent and Lieut. Anderson for Lieut. Grieve. The finding of the Court was that the charges were proved except that relating to negligence. The Court was of the opinion that Captain Nugent should be severely reprimanded and cautioned to be more careful in future and that Lieut. Grieve be reprimanded. ## Looking Back 50 Years.

We have received the first number of a new paper published in Macao in the Portuguese language, called O Correo de Macao. It is a diminutive weekly sheet containing two leading articles, home and general news, and a couple of advertisements. We read in it that it learns from home papers that over 50 Portuguese and two Frenchmen had been massacred by negroes at Dabou in Guinea, Portuguese Africa. We wish our young contemporary all success. Hong Kong Daily Press, October 18, 1932.

KEYNOTE OF BRITISH POLICIESDISARMAMENT NOT RE-ARMAMENT

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

LONDON, Oct. 17. MR. Ramsay MacDonald at a luncheon to-day, which was attended by all Cabinet Ministers except Mr. Runciman, said that the keynote of British policies was not re-armament but disarmament. They had faced and were still facing this problem.

A UNITED INDIA
IN SIGHTSHAUKAT ALI'S
CONFIDENCE

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

LUCKNOW, Oct. 16. "WITHIN a fortnight we shall have a united India," asserted the Moslem leader, Shaikat Ali, at the conclusion of the All-Parties Moslem Congress to-day. The Congress achieved a complete agreement between the protagonists of the separatist and the joint electorate schools of thought, and a decision was reached to negotiate with the Hindu and other communities towards communal unity.

A meeting is likely to be arranged between the Hindu and Moslem delegates very shortly on the basis of the agreement reached at Lucknow. If an agreement is possible, it is felt that the Sikhs will not be long in falling into line. Any agreement reached with the full approval of all the communities would supersede the electoral reform scheme laid down by the British Government.

ON THE RAMPAGE.

MR. MAXTON WANTS MORE STRIKES.

Mr. James Maxton, M.P., who has been making speeches in the Lancashire strike area, has a remarkable article in The New Leader, the organ of the Independent Labour Party, on the struggle. "The Trades Union Congress," he says in one passage, "has expressed its sympathy and given financial aid. Is it too much to hope that the area of the strike might be still further extended, and the issues still further widened?" Another passage is, "A big struggle on the part of the workers has to come sooner or later. Let us have it sooner than later." "There is scarcely one section of the workers," he says, "who have not got good ground for striking at the present time. If all the workers became involved the demand would have to be big enough to include them all. It would require to be for the overthrow of the system."

FRENCH VESSEL RESCUED

H.M.S. BEE IN ACTION ON MIDDLE YANGTZE.

Attacked by Communists near the notorious Temple Hill on the middle Yangtze, a French ship has been saved from pillage through the action of H.M.S. Bee, flagship of the British flotilla on the Yangtze.

The French ship concerned is the Footung, 554 tons gross registry, which plies between Hankow and Ichang. She went aground at a crossing not far to the north of Temple Hill, on her way to Ichang. Communists in the vicinity wasted little time in making an attack on the vessel. First of all they opened a heavy fire with rifles from the shore. Then they started off for the stranded Footung in sampans, covered by rifle fire.

H.M.S. Bee happened to be in the neighbourhood, and appeared on the scene. Within a few minutes the gunboats' shells had silenced the fire from the shore positions, while machine gun fire proved sufficient to clear off the sampans. A wireless message to Ichang resulted in the French gunboat Doudart de Lagree leaving that port at 1 p.m. this ship taking over the protection of the Footung from the Bee.

The Footung, which was built in 1925 at the Kiangnan Dock, belongs to the Union Franco-Chinoise de Navigation.

GERMANY WARNS
HER DEBTORSLOWER TARIFFS DEMANDED.

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

BERLIN, Oct. 16. GERMANY is not in a position to pay even her commercial debts and a brighter outlook is not possible unless outlets are found for German goods by a reduction of tariff barriers.

Thus the Chancellor, Captain von Papen, in an important speech at Westphalia to-day. Referring to the impossibility of releasing the foreign money at present invested in Germany, the Chancellor said that foreign countries must be expected to "consolidate" the money that they have lent to Germany.

The German Government at the forthcoming world economic conference would do its utmost to persuade foreign creditor nations that they could only logically expect the payment of Germany's debts if they were prepared to open their frontiers to German goods.

Ottawa Critic.

The Ottawa Conference, said Captain von Papen, unfortunately was not conducive to a revival of confidence in raising world economic barriers.

At the same time, it was early to abandon hope that the world economic conference would make substantial progress in this respect. Pointing out in connection with the impending quota on imports, which has aroused a storm of protest and a warning from Dr. Luther, President of the Reichsbank, that other countries have done the same thing, Captain von Papen declared that Germany had not resorted to a quota system as a reprisal, but had decided upon its policy in order to save German agriculture.

Captain von Papen announced that a programme had been drawn up for a big propaganda campaign abroad for German goods.

Turning to the disarmament problem, the German Chancellor reiterated that Germany's aim was not to return to the level of her neighbours. She wanted the disarmament of the entire world, equal rights and security for all, with a European state of affairs in which there should be no hegemony, no system of alliances, but a state in which the nations could strive for humanity.

IL DUCE ON WORLD
CRISISCOMPLETE BREAKDOWN
STILL POSSIBLE

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

ROME, Oct. 17. MASSED ranks, comprising 25,000 Fascists, frantically cheered the speech Premier Mussolini delivered at the review to celebrate the famous meeting at Milan, where the March on Rome was planned.

Il Duce declared that those who believed the present world crisis was solvable by miraculous remedies were on the wrong track.

"Either this is a cyclical crisis in which case it will solve itself, or it is a breakdown of the old world system, in which case we are facing a transition from one epoch of civilisation to another."

The second decade of Fascism, he said, presented a task no less severe than the first and its accomplishment rested with youth.

"Nobody is so old as the person who is jealous of youth," declared the Prime Minister.

DISPUTE OVER NEGRO
PASTOROLDENBURG AUTHORITIES
PLACE BAN ON SERMON

Berlin, October 8.—A strange conflict over a negro pastor, the Rev. Mr. Kwami hailing from the former German colony of South-West Africa, has arisen in the little German state of Oldenburg between its National Socialist Premier, Herr Roever and the authorities of the Protestant Church.

When a few days ago it was announced that the Rev. Kwami should preach the sermon the Premier intervened and issued an order forbidding Kwami, who was educated in a German mission school and speaks German fluently, to speak from the pulpit, incidentally accusing the church authorities of "un-German conduct."

MONARCHIST MOVE
IN GERMANY

STRONG OFFICIAL DENIALS

Berlin, Oct. 11.—There is not the slightest foundation for the "phantasy" report that the Reichspräsident or the Cabinet is privy to or in any way whatsoever connected with any plans for a monarchist restoration. Government circles here declared to-day in view of the sensational story carried by the Social-democratic "Vorwärts" and partly endorsed by the "Berliner Tageblatt", and said to be propagated by ex-Crown Prince Wilhelms.

"Vorwärts" stated that the former Crown Prince had publicly declared that, at a given moment, Reichspräsident von Hindenburg would appoint him as Regent and that in carrying out this function he, the Crown Prince, would depend on the assistance of the Reichswehr, the police and the 400,000 armed members of the Steel-helmet organization. According to the same paper, the Crown Prince added that Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria had agreed to this plan and would on the same day descend to the throne of "a Danube Monarchy."

"Berliner Tageblatt" while stating that these plans were very widely spread, added that it does not believe that either the president or any other members of the Cabinet had the slightest sympathy with this project.

Although certain members of the Cabinet, the paper further says, have on former occasions openly admitted that at heart they were still Monarchists and convinced that the monarchist form of government was best suited for Germany, and although the Cabinet now closely co-operate with the National People's party which favours the monarchy, Reichspräsident von Hindenburg can be trusted to remain under all circumstances true to his oath of allegiance to the Republic, while the leading members of the von Papen Cabinet know too well that the return of the former Kaiser or the Crown Prince is absolutely out of question in spite of the occasional appearance of former imperial princes at demonstrations of the National People's Party as well as of the National Socialist party. The steadily increasing enmity between these two parties, the only ones of any importance that might favour a return of the Hohenzollern family, ought, it is pointed out, to be sufficient proof that an attempt to restore the monarchy was a hopeless undertaking.—Trans Ocean Kuma.

SUBMERGED FORESTS

DISCOVERY NEAR JUTLAND PENINSULA.

Hamburg, September 25.—Sunken forests, estimated to be at least 2,000 to 3,000 years old have just been found between the Jutland Peninsula and the East Frisian Islands, which formerly were connected by a broad strip of land. The trees recovered were mostly oaks, of between eight and 15 yards in height and of a circumference of from four to six yards. The greater part of the wood is still in excellent condition and, after the museums and the wood-carvers have got their share, will be sold as fuel.

This strip of forest which has just been recovered forms but an infinitesimal strip of the land of the Peninsula of Jutland, which some 2,000 years ago was flooded by the ocean and has since then always under water.

PLEA FOR CLEMENCY

BURMA DEPUTATION TO GOVERNOR.

Rangoon, Oct. 2.—The Governor of Burma accorded an interview to-day to the Sayadaws of the Peace Mission. The Chief Secretary was also present.

The requests put forward by the Sayadaws for the grant of general clemency to all rebels, including those who surrendered through the members of the Peace Missions in the districts and others, were discussed and His Excellency explained that the Government was already acting on a well-considered policy which involved the examination with the greatest possible care of the individual cases of each convicted rebel on its merits.

His Excellency expressed regret that it was impossible for him with due regard to his responsibility as Governor of the province to grant clemency wholesale and without distinction as requested by the Sayadaws; and he added that in no case had any prisoner who had surrendered within the terms of any amnesty proclamation been sentenced to death and that in numerous cases, where prisoners had been sentenced to imprisonment for rebellion, directions had been given to re-examine their cases after a limited period of years in case the circumstances should then justify their release.

Help for the Mission.

As regards the request of the Sayadaws that villagers deported today to the Burma Village Act should now be permitted to return to their villages, His Excellency said that the possibility of permitting a mass of them as possible to return to their villages would be examined in consultation with the district officers concerned.

Finally, the Sayadaws requested that local officials should be instructed to render all possible assistance to local Peace Missions, explaining that it was still their intention that Peace Missions should be sent out to preach against crime from the religious point of view. His Excellency readily assured the Sayadaws that directions would be issued that local officers should support all such efforts to counteract crime.

ARMS SUPPLIES TO VOLUNTEERSSERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST SOVIET

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

HARBIN, Oct. 17. ALLEGATIONS that the Soviet Government is supplying arms and ammunition to the anti-Manchukuo forces are the subject of strong comment in the Japanese-owned Harbin Times.

The newspaper definitely states that the anti-Manchukuo Volunteers are equipped with Russian machine-guns and ammunition, declaring that the captures have proved this beyond any measure of doubt.

As all the U.S.S.R. munition factories are owned by the Soviet Government and as the system of control prevents the leakage and sale of arms and ammunition to contrabandists, the munition must be supplied with the knowledge of the U.S.S.R. Government.

This action, says the Harbin Times, is tantamount to an infringement of international law and is an obvious demonstration of unfriendliness.

ARE INCREASING

[Wah Tze Yat Pao.]

Peiping, October 17. Guerilla warfare between the Chinese volunteers and the Japanese-Manchukuo forces in southern Manchuria is assuming more serious proportions as both sides are mobilising on a large scale. The Japanese military authorities have ordered one division of infantry, one air squadron and one company of cavalry to march on the Chinese volunteers' position from Hsin-Hai Railway. They are attempting to surround the Chinese from three directions.

Koreans Help Chinese? The Chinese volunteers in the east of Liaoning are claimed to have increased to 35,000 strong under the command of Tang Chu Wu, who is reported to have enlisted three thousand Koreans and is planning to form a Sino-Korean Allied Army. However, his main difficulty is to join with other bands of volunteers in western Liaoning. Failing this his position is inevitably isolated.

LAST NIGHT OF "CAVALCADE"

London, Sept. 10.—To-night the last performance of "Cavalcade" takes place at Drury Lane. Mr. Noel Coward and Mr. Cochrane will both be present.

Since the last nights were announced Drury Lane has been packed, and the takings have approximated to £4,000 a week. Last Wednesday there was the biggest matinee since April.

The following are some of the statistics of "Cavalcade":
Number of performances 403
Total number of people who have visited the play (counting 2,000 as to-night's audience) 731,392
Amount paid in entertainment tax 243,043
Number of people employed in theatre 644
Number of costumes 1,200
Miss Mary Clare has not missed a single performance since the play opened. She makes thirty-three changes of costumes, and it is computed that she runs a mile at every performance.

Mr. Cochrane says that he had received another offer to produce "Cavalcade" in New York, but no decision has yet been made. An American film man who lives in London paid his fiftieth visit to Drury Lane on Wednesday night, and he said that he believed the play would be a big success in New York.

FRENCH SENATE
ELECTIONSM. POINCARÉ
RE-ELECTED

[THROUGH REUTERS AGENCY.]

PARIS, Oct. 16. THE first ballot in the Senatorial Elections has resulted in the election of M. Poincaré, M. Gardey (Minister of Agriculture), M. Paul Boncour (Minister for War) and M. Lucien Saint (Resident-General of Morocco).

M. Poincaré, who returns to politics after a lapse of some years, at the age of 72, was elected for the Meuse securing 692 votes out of 822. Apart from half-a-dozen gains for the Ministerial Radicals, the election for 111 Senators (held every three years), left the complexion of the Senate practically unchanged.

The only surprise was the defeat of M. Marraud, a former Minister, by M. André Fallières, son of the former President of France.

"THUNDERER" CHANGES"TIMES" TO APPEAR WITH NEW TYPE FACE

Significant of the changing conditions of modern life, The Times appeared on October 3 with changes more radical than ever before in its long history of leadership in British journalism. The size, shape and character remain unchanged but the newspaper is printed in a new type originated and designed in its own printing works in Printing House Square and every text and heading front are changed. While the reader may not notice all the technical innovations, comment will undoubtedly be aroused when the journal appears with its head on the front page not in the familiar Gothic titling THE TIMES. Although most newspapers use the Gothic line for their title, in the case of "The Times" it is not an innovation but merely a return to an older style.

Back to Original Titling.

From its foundation on January 1, 1785, as "The Daily Universal Register," till March 18, 1788, when its present name was some three months old, it bore its title in Roman lettering. That lettering it gave up for the present "trick Gothic" in emulation of a lively journal called "The World," which had the ear of the town. "The World" died a hundred years ago and more; its trick Gothic, adopted in turn by nearly every other newspaper, has remained till now the convention. The new lettering of the title is based on that at the head of the first issue of "The Times" (No. 940 of "The Daily Universal Register"), dated January 1, 1785. To complete the consistency of the title-piece design the coat of arms used by "The Times" in 1782 has been re-engraved.

The object of the change is to keep abreast of the changes in social habits. The eighteenth century read its "Times" largely in coffee-houses; the nineteenth in railway trains. The twentieth reads it in motor-cars and in air liners. The new types are specially designed by "The Times" to suit its own columns; but they were not adopted without being subjected to the severest tests of their effect upon the eyes, nor without the approval of the highest medical authority. Legibility has been the first object; and in all the wide range of revision the need of common-sense, print for an everyday purpose has been kept in mind, and any thing in the nature of needless novelty has been avoided.

DEATH OF PERE
FROCFORMER SICCAWEI
DIRECTOR PASSES AWAY

News of the death of Father Louis Froc was received here yesterday, says the N.C. Daily News of October 14. As Director of the Siccawei Observatory, Father Froc had laboured for half a century in the cause of safe navigation.

His work known and appreciated internationally and in itself a monument to his name, Father Froc came of a seafaring family, his father being a French naval officer. While a youth, he was greatly impressed by the frequent sound of the port gun on the coast of Brittany denoting ships in distress. His ambition to reduce the dangers of seamen from that time inspired a life devoted to humanity.

During his 80 years' service with the Observatory, Father Froc was for a third of a century a worthy director in his noble devotion, the reliable meteorological information of the Observatory having proved an invaluable and beneficial service to the shipping world. Year after year, especially during the typhoon season, Le Père Froc had never once been found wanting.

Father Froc was not a pioneer when he took over the directorship. He had for years followed the work of such great pioneers as Le Lee, Colombel, and Dechevrens. After having almost spent his entire life in the service of his fellowmen, he sailed from this port in retirement in August last year. The departure of a beloved worker was regretted by all who knew him. Father Froc disliked publicity. He took the view that he had simply done his duty and that his work needed no special mention. Only a few years ago a road in the French Concession was named after him, a fitting tribute to a great man. It is, however, inevitable that any mention of the weather and the Observatory will instinctively bring his name to mind. No other monument to his name is needed.

Father Froc arrived here in 1853, and commenced immediately to study Chinese language. Ever since in 1884, he had been attached to the Siccawei Observatory. He was 72 years of age.

[On his way home Father Froc received a most cordial welcome in Hong Kong, being met by the senior members of the Royal Observatory staff and entertained subsequently by the Rotary Club.]

ALLEGED GANGSTERS WHO

Tokyo, Oct. 10.—The three gangsters who four days ago robbed the Omori branch of the Kawasaki Kurehatsu Bank of 31,700 yen in bank-notes have been arrested. One of them, apprehended in Tokyo yesterday, disclosed the hiding-place of his two confederates, who were staying at a house near Shiba Park. Forty policemen raided the house at 4 o'clock this morning and arrested them from their bed.

The gangsters, Zenkichi Imaizumi (22), Yoshiharu Nishishiro (24), and Keiichi Nakamura (24) are alleged to be Communists.

FROM BABE RUTHGOOGLY ONLY MEANS
AMERICAN "STUFF"

Mr. Henry McLemore, a well-known American baseball journalist, sent to watch the Australian cricket team when they were touring in the United States, wrote the following report, quoted by the British United Press:

Well, I'm rather ashamed of myself, but I finally went to a cricket game. It was in the Bronx, just where it belonged. While I was there, an English sort of person, a sports writer, said that if I was having difficulty understanding things he would write out a few words which would tell me what went on. I give you the words, as follows:

"The Australian cricket XI, opposed a New York West Indian XI, at Inisfail Park, New York, today, and, led by the devastating bowling of the only left-handed googly exponent in the world, Leslie O'Brien Fleetwood-Smith, dismissed the home side for a total of 152 runs."

Folks, I saw that. But don't ask me to explain. I arrived about an hour after the match started, while the players were out to lunch.

Thought It Was Over.

The West Indians, who went out to bat first, were leading 152 runs to nothing. Figuring that with one team 152 runs ahead the game was as good as over, I was just ready to leave when my English friend found me.

"Don't go," he said. "The Australians haven't come to bat yet. They'll make 152 runs in half an hour."

Half an hour, hell! They made 152 runs in 15 minutes. They made runs so fast the boys who kept the scoreboard quit putting them up one at a time, and started hanging them up in tens—20, 30, 40 and so on.

All these runs, mind you, despite the fact that there are nine ways in which a batsman may be retired. He may be stumped, caught, run out, bowled, leg-before-wicket, obstruction, hit wicket, handling ball in play, hit the ball twice.

The batsman, however, gets his share of the breaks. When he hits a ball he doesn't have to run. If he sees that one of the fielders is going to get it he just stands still and it doesn't count. Not until he smacks it over the fielders' heads or through their legs, does he run.

Even Three Thousand.

There were two fences surrounding the field, a low one and a high one. A ball that struck or cleared the little fence was good for four runs, a poke that cleared the big fence was good for six runs. I figure that Babe Ruth, on a good afternoon, would be good for two or three thousand runs.

The fielders are known by very fetching names, such as square-leg, mid-on, mid-off, slips, long stop, and gully.

Cricketers are very poor on fielding, if yesterday's match was any criterion. They missed pop flies that an outfielder in the three-eye league would get in his hip pocket, and muffed grounders that any bush league shortstop would have handled blind-folded.

A Serious Offence.

Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you. If the batter swings and misses, one and the catcher lets the ball get by him and roll to the boundary, it's four runs. Four runs on a "strike!"

"Googly" which the Australian bowler had plenty of, is just another word for "stuff."

And when a batsman is "bowled for a duck" it simply means he was struck out without getting a run. You can realise what a serious offence this is when I tell you that even when a guy gets 50 or 60 runs in one time at bat, he's only hitting about .071.

OLD ARTILLERYMAN
ANSWERS LAST
"CALL"WELL-KNOWN R.M.A.
INSTRUCTOREARL'S TRIBUTE TO A FINE
SOLDIER

A well-known old artilleryman of the Woolwich Garrison has answered his last call, and was laid to rest at Brookwood, Surrey, last month.

He was Sergeant-Pensioner James Thomas, of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, and late Quartermaster-Sergeant Gunner Instructor of the Royal Field Artillery. He was 82 when he died on August 25 and he was buried on the following Tuesday.

Probably the oldest surviving member of the Staff of Instructors of the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, he had a wide circle of friends in the Garrison and the town, and his scarlet conted figure with his distinguishing white beard and smart bearing was frequently commended during his week-end visits to friends in Woolwich.

He was much in demand when the "Old Brigade" were required for duty at Royal functions, and regimental anniversaries, and his undoubted patriotism and capriciousness was at all times heartily reciprocated by all members of the regiment.

Many Royal Artillery officers who have won renown have, on innumerable occasions, enjoyed recalling incidents of the days when as cadets at the Royal Military Academy they came under Sergeant-Instructor J. Thomas.

A Proud Moment.

One of his proudest achievements was to be chosen as representative of past Artillery-men to assist General Lord Horne to the unveiling of the Royal Artillery war memorial at Hyde Park Corner.

A member of the famous 71st (Broken Wheel) Battery, at Tel-el-Kehir, his old battery have always insisted on his spending a holiday with them every summer since their return to England.

Major the Hon. Earl Denbigh, K.C.V.O., in sending condolences to Mrs. Gibbons (née Thomas), wrote: "He was a fine old soldier and I was very glad to find him again a few years ago."

"I shall be unable to be present at his funeral, but please accept the few flowers as a tribute from the surviving officer of the (Broken Wheel Battery), Tel-el-Kehir."

Enlisting at Bristol in 1908, Sergeant-Pensioner Thomas saw service in India and Egypt (Khedive medal and star). He completed twenty-one years' service and retired to pension, and was for sometime a shoe-maker at the Royal Artillery Barracks, Woolwich. On the death of his wife in 1910, he went to Chelsea Hospital as a pensioner.

During the Great War he did some magnificent recruiting work, and also fulfilled small parts in important propaganda films, such as "Every Mother's Son," and others, exhibiting as much zeal as an ambitious recruit.

TRAM DRIVER'S TERRIBLE
CHOICERUNS OVER MOTHER TO SAVE PASSENGERS.

Tokyo.—The Mainichi reports an extraordinary story of the driver of a tramcar endangering the life of his mother in an attempt to save the lives of the passengers of his car.

Elichi Kaneko, a driver in the employ of the Chichibu Railway in the town of Minano, Saitama Prefecture, was driving an electric car over a railway bridge, when he noticed two women walking on the bridge before the car. One of these women he recognized as his mother, but when he noticed them the distance was so short that there was a danger of the sudden stopping of the car entailing a derailment and possibly a fall of the car into the river below. His care for the lives of the passengers outweighed his consideration for the life of his mother, and he allowed his car to rush on with the inevitable result of serious injuries to both women.

His mother was flung into the river sixty feet below, and the other woman was run over, her left leg being cut off. Both are in a critical condition.

FREE STATE'S
FOURTH ARMYNEW IRISH NATIONAL GUARDPROTECTION FOR DE VALERA

The Irish Free State is to have yet another army in the near future.

We have already the "Green," or Regular Army; the "Red" Army (the I.R.A.); and Dr. O'Higgins' "White" Army.

The colour of the new army will be a delicate shade of pink.

Its sponsor is Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for Defence in the de Valera Government. Its official title is to be "The National Guard." In theory it is to be a kind of volunteer reserve, in which the young men of the country are to be trained and drilled.

From Red to Pink.

Mr. Aiken hopes, by this movement, to get control of the I.R.A., and tone down its flaring red to a less alarming pink. At the moment he does not trust either the I.R.A. or the Regular Army overmuch. Since he came into office he has been hesitating as to how best he might combine the two under his own control.

The National Guard scheme is the outcome, he hopes, by providing all the facilities possible for training and drilling without imposing the obligations of regular military service, to wean from the I.R.A. the young men throughout the country who have been drifting into the ranks of the extremist organisation.

With the "Pink" Army at his disposal, Mr. Aiken believes that he will be able to make the Government secure against any threats to its existence from either the "Reds" or the "Whites."

The "Reds" are certain to see through their game, and take active steps to prevent any lapses from their ranks. Nobody who has any sympathy with the "Whites" is in the least likely to have anything to do with Mr. Aiken's "Pinks."

Donamon Castle, near Roscommon, belonging to Mr. St. George Caulfield, which had been in the occupation of 200 members of the I.R.A. since Sunday, has been evacuated. It is not likely that Mr. de Valera's Government will take any action regarding this challenge to their authority.

An outstanding instance of how completely Mr. de Valera is under the thumb of the extremists was provided at Kilmash District Court, when, in obedience to the orders of the I.R.A., charges against George Gilmore, the I.R.A. leader, and two of his subordinates, named Ryan and Lowe, were withdrawn by the Government. They were charged with the attempted murder of two detectives and with conspiracy to murder. Counsel announced that the charges would be withdrawn and an inquiry set up into the action of the police.

Fresh acts of terrorism have occurred in Dublin. Parties of I.R.A. men have visited various cinemas and warned the managers against showing films of members of the Royal Family or any other "British police."

A police sergeant was fired at by three men at Clondalkin, near the city, but was not hit. The assailants escaped.

A policeman who held up a motorist for having no lights at Bowth-road, Dublin, was threatened with a revolver. The policeman grappled with and disarmed the man, who was arrested.

SNAKE CHARMER KILLED

BITTEN BY ONE OF HIS PET
COBRAS.

Another snake charmer has lost his life through being bitten by a pet snake, says the Dangkok Times.

He was a wealthy man and had been bitten many times before, until his wife had a firm belief in his ability to treat himself in his own way.

This time the treatment did not bring relief and the man died before a doctor could be summoned. The snake that bit him was a pet cobra which he had brought up, being some two years old. Presumably had not been bitten by a cobra before.

MYSTERY OF COL.
FAWCETTGERMAN EXPLORER SAYS
HE WAS MURDERED

Berlin, Oct. 7.—Added to the various theories already advanced as to the fate of Colonel Ph. Fawcett in the jungles of Brazil, now comes a German adventurer and soldier of fortune, known under the pseudonym of "Tex Harding," who claims to have flown over the region traversed by Colonel Fawcett, to have landed among the Indians who, he says, murdered the explorer, and to have brought out as captive a White Indian girl who, he claims, is the only available person who can substantiate his claims of Colonel Fawcett's death.

Harding is now seeking a publisher to bring out his book, which he says he is offering in order to end, once for all, the futile expeditions which from time to time have been organised to seek out Colonel Fawcett, and which he promises will contain the conclusive proofs of his story.

Harding is well known in Brazil where he lived until 1929 by hunting snake specimens and capturing wild animals for exhibition. Prior to that, he completed a 21,000 kilometre horseback ride from Mexico City over the Andes to Brazil. He lived for a time in French Guiana, and returned, two years ago, to Germany. He is now living in Berlin.

Harding says that he undertook the search for clues to Colonel Fawcett's expedition as a sporting proposition with Lieut. Will Barnes in 1929. The two, flying an all-metal Curtiss monoplane flying boat, set out with only a copy of the old 18th century Jesuit map which Colonel Fawcett had used, over the inner jungles.

Camp Traces.

He says it was clear from the beginning that Fawcett had greatly multiplied their difficulties by the fact that he had announced no definite goal, probably because he wanted to keep it secret from possible rivals. The two flew over the territory which Fawcett said he would penetrate, that is, the territory drained by the Xingu and Tapajoz Rivers. They found traces of a Fawcett camp, Harding claims, but this, of itself, would have proved nothing.

The two flyers remained in the jungle for two months, he says, without encountering a single Indian or any sign that the jungle was inhabited. Then, accidentally, they chanced upon a fanatical ceremony of the native cult, captured one of the participants, the White Indian girl, and, after a skirmish with the enraged natives, succeeded in escaping. It was these White Indians which Fawcett was seeking, Harding says, as descendants of the lost country of "Atlantis." The Indian girl they left on a plantation near Cuyaba, says Harding, where she has been adopted by the wife of the owner. Both kept this phase of their expedition secret, he explained, since they would have been subject to fines by the Brazilian Government if it had become known that they had kidnapped an Indian.

The girl will be able to substantiate his story that Fawcett and the members of his party are dead, he claims, and thus avoid the risk of other lives in a fruitless search. Harding says the lack of news from the Retin expedition in search of Fawcett, which is now overdue, influenced him in telling about the Indian girl, whom he had hoped to save from the confusion of official and scientific questioning.

emanating from earth.

Scientists have speculated, however, as to whether there may have been periods in the remote past when cosmic rays fell more thickly. Both this speculation and the possibility that long ago there was more radium have been pointed out as interesting guesses upon the origins of new species of animals and plants many millions of years ago.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, now conducting a world-wide series of tests, finds about 10 per cent. more cosmic rays in temperate than in tropic zones. But nowhere has science found enough cosmic rays to be a really big factor in heredity. They are fewer than the radium rays naturally in the air and much less than the radium rays everywhere.

LIFE FROM THE
STARSINVISIBLE COSMIC RAYS
THAT AFFECT HEREDITY

New York.—The possibility that the stars affect heredity is shown by measurements of cosmic rays which are revealed by two physicists of Denver University.

Many scientists believe these invisible rays come from the stars. The Denver men, J. C. Stearns and Wilcox Overback, compare them with radium rays and find striking similarities.

Heredity comes into the picture because one of the latest discoveries of science show that radium rays can affect heredity even creating new species.

The Denver scientists describe their experiments in a letter to the Physical Review. They shielded two-tenths of a milligram of radium—about as much as the point of a pin—within a covering of lead, a centimetre thick.

About six feet away, they set up a sensitive meter capable of recording both the faint radium rays filtering through the lead and the cosmic rays coming from the sky.

With the radium at this fixed distance, they found that the cosmic ray effects were constantly equal to about one-third of the radium rays in the power of ionisation.

Ionisation is the break-up of an atom. It is also the way in which radium rays are believed to have created new species recently in laboratories. In the species-building the ionisation broke up the atoms composing the genes, tiny living units which control heredity.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, now conducting a world-wide series of tests, finds about 10 per cent. more cosmic rays in temperate than in tropic zones. But nowhere has science found enough cosmic rays to be a really big factor in heredity. They are fewer than the radium rays naturally in the air and much less than the radium rays everywhere.

CLERGY'S RIGHT TO MARRY

'SECURITY AGAINST ROME'

That the right of the clergy to marry was a security against any real Romanisation of the Church of England was claimed at the conference of Modern Churchmen at Bristol.

Professor C. C. J. Webb, the theologian, discussing the Reformation and the Oxford Movement, declared that the refusal of both the Tractarians themselves and the great majority of their successors, even of the most advanced wing of their party, to demand celibacy from the clergy generally or to regard the married life as inconsistent with the sacerdotal had been to the last degree important as a security against any real Romani-sation of the Church of England.

Professor Webb also had something to say about superstitions, which were condemned by the Bishop of Birmingham (Dr. Barnes) on Thursday. "I deplore," he said, "the insistence of not a few Anglo-Catholics of the present day —an insistence which I cannot bring myself to think to be other than superstitious—on the supposed necessity of approaching the sacrament fasting."

"Like the no less superstitious taboo against manual work on Sunday, which was encouraged by a different school of Churchmanship and has so lamentably come in the imagination of many uneducated English folk to survive all other elements of Christian faith and observances, it illustrates the proness of the human heart to relapse into a sub-Christian form of religion."

PROPAGANDA BY THE SOVIET

EYES ON IRELAND AND INDIA

Riga, Oct. 9.—The Executive Committee of the Komintern, or the Third International, at a secret plenary conference recently held in Moscow, is reported to have decided to ginger up revolutionary effort abroad.

The meeting, it is said, decided that several countries, particularly Great Britain, India, Japan and Germany had become more vulnerable lately.

The conference advocated agitation in Britain for the complete independence of Ireland and other Dominions, and urged that efforts should be directed towards persuading the peasants in India to refuse to pay taxes, organising strikes in Great Britain, India and elsewhere, organising the masses in Japan, and training them for an armed struggle with the authorities, and encouraging in a more determined manner, disloyal elements in China to extend guerilla warfare and to march against Nanking to overthrow the Kuomintang.

"THE PASSIONATE PLUMBER"

LAUGHS AT THE QUEEN'S

A trade notice states:—
Gilbert Roland has been discovered to have the staidest nerves of any player in Hollywood. The test occurred during filming of "The Passionate Plumber" story of a romantic pipe-fitter which is showing at the Queen's Theatre, with a cast headed by the three comedy specialists, Buster Keaton, Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante and Polly Moran.

For an important sequence of the plot, Roland had to stand facing a door while a razor-edged dagger was hurled with terrific force to stick in the wood a scant inch from his ear.

Attempts have often been made to get this effect by "reverse cranking" of a camera and pulling the knife out of a wall close to the player, with a strand of thin wire. This approximates the throwing of a knife but is not nearly as spectacular or speedy as the actual throw. Edward Sedgwick, the director, decided that to get a real thrill into the scene the actual knife sticking was necessary.

A professional was hired, who could throw a knife to within half an inch of a designated spot. He demonstrated his ability to everyone's satisfaction and cameras and microphones were lined up for the scene. Roland quietly took his place near the door. The rest of the cast, including Keaton, Miss Moran and Irene Purcell, gathered around to watch the stunt.

The thrower's arm flashed forward and the knife sped through the air to strike exactly on a designated spot close to Roland's ear. Without wavering, the actor turned and registered the horrified expression required in the scene. When it was over, everyone congratulated him on the realism of his performance.

"Realism, the deuce!" exclaimed Roland, "I felt the wind on my cheek as that knife went by!"

COMING TO THE QUEEN'S

A BRITISH THRILLER

A trade notice states:—
"I hope you will come to the Priory, and hope I shall be alive to see you." Thus the young Lord Lebanon, addressing two Scotland Yard detectives who are anxious to get to the bottom of the secret that lurks in the home of the Lebanons. It is evident that the young peer, last of the Lebanon line, is far from easy in his mind. There are influences afoot, sinister influences of which he seems dimly aware, yet cannot describe with anything approaching definiteness.

These influences, that widen and widen until Marks Priory is overshadowed by two deliberate murders, go to the making of the story of "The Frightened Lady," showing on Thursday at the Queen's and regarded as one of Edgar Wallace's best.

It is interpreted by a cast, many of whose members played leading roles in "The Case of the Frightened Lady" when that enormously successful stage play ran at Wyndham's Theatre. Among those who carry the honours of "The Frightened Lady" are Cathleen Nesbitt, Norman McKinnel, Emyln Williams, Belle Chrystal and Gordon Harker.

"CONGORILLA"

REAL JUNGLE THRILLS AT KING'S

A trade notice states:—
Mrs. Martin Johnson, who stood guard with her deadly rifle while her husband photographed the thrilling scenes of their latest African picture, "Congorilla," the first sound picture ever to be made in the African jungle, now showing at the King's Theatre, is often referred to as the bravest woman in the world.

This tiny, smiling, pretty woman, has faced more wild beasts in the African jungle than there are in captivity in America. She is the first and only woman to receive an African hunter and guide license, and has spent the greater part of her married life in the wilds of the Dark Continent.

Questioned about her recent experiences in Africa, she said the most interesting and thrilling part of their two-year safari were the seven months they spent in the Pygmy country, in the Itura Forest.

"They were the most interesting people I have ever encountered. My first glimpse of them, some sixty or more dancing and singing around two-ton-ton players, I remember reminded me of a gathering of gnomes from fairy story land. They were as cute as could be. And so tiny. After we got to know them better I picked two of the women up under my arms, one under each arm and pretended I was going to carry them off. They thought we were giants and marvelled as much at us as we did at them, I guess."

In the Fox production, "Congorilla," the Johnsons have succeeded not only in capturing the movements of these queer people as they perform their everyday duties and strange rituals, but also their strange speech and songs. They have also recorded for the first time the strange screaming of the large gorillas, the howling of the hippos and the other weird and natural noises of the jungle.

"HEAVEN ON EARTH"

A trade notice states:—

A motion picture "sold" with three actors before the cameras and more than 100 technicians behind the scenes. This is the record created in a series of scenes which form a part of "Heaven on Earth," Universal's colourful Mississippi River drama now playing at the Oriental Theatre. The scenes consist of close-up views of the bank of the Mississippi River during a flood, with rickety "shanty-boats" in the water and dilapidated shacks on the adjacent shore. Though the long shots of this stirring action were taken on the river "location" where the major portion of the picture was filmed, these close-ups were made at Universal studios, on account of the necessity of having the turbulent waters actually under the control of the director.

This instance is another illustration of the fact that the most expensive and most picturesque portions of a motion picture are those which are behind the cameras, and never appear on the screen.

Low Ayres' supporting cast, in "Heaven on Earth," in addition to Miss Louise and Miss Patterson, includes Harry Beresford, Slim Summerville, Charley Grapewin, Lew Kelly, Alf P. James, Harland Knight, Francis Ford and many other noted character actors.

CHILD ACTOR AND
MARLENE DIETRICHPILFERING THE MAIN INTEREST.

Dickie Moore, five-year-old actor, has earned the reputation of being Hollywood's most dangerous "scene stealer."

The title was bestowed upon him when he finished four weeks of cinematic larceny by pilfering a scene from Marlene Dietrich during the filming of Josef von Sternberg's widely-discussed "Blonde Venus" at the Paramount studios.

Dickie "stole" the scene by dexterously sucking a lolly-pop while Miss Dietrich held him in her lap. Sound effects materially aided in the theft, it is reported.

"Scene-stealing," which in Hollywood jargon means diverting the audience's attention to oneself through unusual gestures and facial expressions, is not deliberately done in Dickie's case. The fact that he is a child wins half of the audience's attention at the outset. Natural childish actions and traits usually capture the rest of the spectators' attention.

Herbert Marshall, English stage star, became a victim of the child's artless art when Dickie brought forth squeals from a teddy bear during a scene.

"FILM'S THE THING"

DECREASE IN VALUE OF POPULAR "STARS."

"The public insist on good films to-day. They are fully cinema-conscious. They know exactly what they want; and they demand a high standard. They are no longer willing to accept a bad film because a popular 'star' is in it. In my experience, the public taste in films is improving rapidly."

This is the opinion of Mr. Sidney Bernstein, one of the large film exhibitors in Great Britain. His theatre, the Granada, at Teatling, has just completed its first anniversary, and during the last year over two million people have attended there.

"We have come to the opinion," he continued, "that it is the film which pulls the audience in. The film must be the best of its kind. The public 'go shopping' for films nowadays. By that I mean that if a small cinema shows a better film than I am showing in my theatre, the small cinema will reap the benefit."

There are, of course, a small number of stars who still all houses, but we find a definite decrease in 'star value' where reliance is placed on a name to pull the public into the cinema. It is true now that 'the film's the thing.'

"This, I think, will be the regeneration of the film industry. It will compel producers to produce films of a higher quality."

GLORIA SWANSON AT WORK

HER BRITISH TALKIE: "PERFECT UNDERSTANDING"

I went down to see Miss Gloria Swanson begin work at the Ealing Studios on her first British talkie, "Perfect Understanding," said a London reporter.

When I arrived at the studio Miss Swanson was not to be found. I saw her car blinking and flashing in the sun with other cars, but I did not see Miss Swanson.

I said to myself: "She is in conference." And it was so.

I therefore entered the studio and found myself in a noble English mansion somewhere in the country. Tests were being made of various people in the film for lighting, make-up and clothes.

Perched on a high stool in the middle of a panelled oak drawing room was Miss Genevieve Tobin. In front of her was an enormous, an absolutely monstrous, camera. Eight men were engaged in manipulating the camera, in giving orders, in switching on lights, in switching them off, in making notes, in posing, instructing and arranging Miss Tobin.

Miss Tobin, unperturbed by the lights, the camera, the eight men round her, and her first appearance in a British studio, jumped down from the high stool and became herself again.

From the studio, which was echoing with the sound of hammers and continuous activity in all directions, I went into the tearoom. All the small part players, extras and studio folk at the Associated Radio Pictures Studios have meals in this room.

But there is an important room leading off it. I was shown in. It is used for the stars and their circumambient satellites—directors, producers, "big shots." It is a circular room with brilliant red chairs and a large circular table, and it has the optimism of the Ealing decorative scheme.

While I was looking at this room the door opened and a young woman in a quiet blue frock quietly sat down and quietly ordered tea. It was Gloria Swanson.

With her was Mr. Michael Farmer, her husband, Captain Richard Norton, who is in charge of United Artists British productions and a director of Miss Swanson's British film company, and Mr. Irving Wackoff, her manager.

A Star and Her Story.

I asked Miss Swanson whether the title of her film, "Perfect Understanding," was meant satirically or literally.

"Well, it is partly satirical," she said, with a Swansonian smile. "It should be 'Imperfect Understanding,'" said Mr. Farmer.

"That's more like it." "It is about an American girl," said Miss Swanson, "who comes to England and meets the son of a peer."

"He falls in love with her and shows her round England. She likes him, but does not know whether to marry him. But in the course of her tour she has a chance of observing marriage from many points of view. It does not help her to decide. She realises that success in marriage does not depend on the experience of other people, but on the woman herself."

"The style of the picture will be something like 'The Trespasser'—light, fast-running and sophisticated, but with emotional scenes intervening."

"How long will you be working on the film?"

"If I told you," said Miss Swanson, "it wouldn't mean anything. Perhaps five weeks, perhaps longer."

"And are you going to make more pictures here?"

"I should like to. I don't know. Your income tax is high, you know!"

I could see that Miss Swanson was about to confer again—over a cup of tea. They were working at the studio till ten o'clock that night—a detail in the life of a film star.
